WHAT IS PRESIDENT TAFT SAYING?

This snapshot photograph shows the President in his automobile at Harvard Aviation Field, with his daughter, Miss Helen Taft. Charlie Taft, his son, is standing alongside the machine.

Charlie has evidently made a request of the President. What is the answer?

Mr. Taft's smile is enigmatical. It is known that Charlie is very anxious to fly with Mr. Grahame-White. If you were a diplomat with international affairs on your hands, how would you interpret the Presidential expression?

BODY OF WOMAN IN POND

The body of an unknown woman was found floating on Mirror Lake, Woburn, this noon.

It was found by Dr. A. F. Walker, a well-to-do, retired physician, on whose Woburn estate Mirror Lake is situated.

After a brief preliminary examination Dr. H. G. Blake, medical examiner of Woburn, said that he had not determined the exact cause of death. He ordered the body to the undertaking rooms of Edward E. Lynch. There he planned a detailed examination early this afternoon to see if death was caused by other than drowning.

Preliminary description of the body and clothing was:

Age—About thirty years.
Height—Five feet six inches.
Hair—Dark.
Clothing—White duck suit, black straw hat with white rim and black feather in front, black coat, white petticoat.
Jewelry—Two rings, one cameo, one opal—neither one a wedding ring.

Dr. Walker was in his garden by the shore of the lake this noon. The lake is really a good-sized pond, about 400 feet across. The doctor saw the body, floating face down near the shore. The water in the lake runs to twenty-foot depth, but was shallow where the body was floating.

Dr. Walker telephoned the Woburn police station. Chief Charles F. McDermott, Patrolman Hartley Tarr and Medical Examiner Blake hurried over there. Meanwhile a crowd of neighbors collected by the pond.

The police took the body from the water. So far as anyone could see in the few minutes the body lay on shore, there was no mark of violence.

U. S. SOLICITOR-GENERAL BOWERS, WHO DIED TO-DAY

LLOYD W. BOWERS.

L. W. BOWERS, U. S. SOLICITOR GENERAL, DEAD

Solicitor-General Lloyd Wheaton Bowers died to-day in the Hotel Touraine of a complication of bronchitis and heart trouble. He had been ill at the hotel for a month, but within a few days seemed better, so that his son, returning from abroad and reaching his parents yesterday, was very hopeful of his father's condition. The daughter, Miss Martha Bowers, is in the Rocky Mountains, and the funeral arrangements will not be completed until she reaches the Bowers home in Washington.

Thomas W. Bowers, son of the late Solicitor-General, said to-day that the funeral party would leave Boston for Washington to-morrow night, and, while the funeral arrangements were not fully made, the burial will occur in Westfield, Ct. The son said:

"I was confident that my father's health would be restored up to a few hours before his death and my mother was also very hopeful. My father was fifty-one years of age."

Was Trust Fighter.

General Bowers conducted the Government's prosecution of the Tobacco, Standard Oil and other trust cases.

Mr. Bowers was a Chicago railroad attorney when he gave up a salary of $31,500 a year to become Solicitor-General of the United States, and it was thought at the time he sought for the position a place in the Cabinet. Had he lived a little longer he might have attained the highest professional position a lawyer can attain. He has recently been talked of as a probable appointee to the United States Supreme Court.

He was born in Springfield, Mass., and while at Yale he and William H. Taft were fraternity brothers. The President and Mr. Bowers have ever since remained the closest friends.

It has been said of Mr. Bowers that he belonged to the "intellectual aristocracy of the United States." He was a descendant of Jonathan Edwards, the great theologian and Calvinistic writer. He studied law in company with Attorney-General Wickersham who was his official superior when Mr. Bowers died. When they were in law students in New York Mr. Bowers got $7 a week, but the other youth got nothing. The best statement about his career was given by Mr. Bowers himself. He said:

Parents Were Poor.

"My youth was conventional and I have lived like a typical American. Born in Springfield, I went to live when a child first in Brooklyn, and then in New Jersey. I went to Yale, read law in New York, and practiced there for a while before going to Minnesota. I stayed in that State nine years and then went to Chicago. I had been practicing law there for sixteen years when I was persuaded to take place under the government in Washington.

"My father was poor but I went to college because since 1630, when my ancestors came from England to this country, all of my name and family, except the few who were farmers, did nothing else. have been Congregational clergymen or college professors and presidents. Jonathan Edwards was one of my forbears. Moreover, my father said he would rather put $10,000 in my head than in my pocket.

"My father helped me through college, but I earned some money tutoring other boys. We were poor and I did all I could for myself. I had won a fellowship and $2,000 spread over six years, but I had to stay to get the money. Yale authorities wanted me to remain and become a tutor. Then in time I would get a professorship. But I felt courageous and energetic and wanted to plunge into the thick of things, so after getting my degree at Yale and, with very little money in my pocket, entered the Columbia Law School. I was admitted to the bar in 1882."

HARVARD AVIATION FIELD, Squantum, Sept. 9.—Claude Grahame-White declared to-day that he proposed to make more than a mile a minute in a flight around Boston Light. As this is Governor's Day and Governor Draper and his staff are expected here early in the afternoon, it is believed that the daring aviator will make another dash around the ocean light before evening.

CURTISS ANXIOUS TO BEAT RECORD.

Glenn H. Curtiss, the crack American aviator, declared that he would make an attempt to beat the Englishman's time, and as Curtiss flew at the rate of seventy miles an hour over Lake Erie, a very hot contest is expected between the two competitors for the $10,000 prize. He, too, may fly to the light to-day.

The weather conditions for flying had greatly improved by noon, and the Contest Committee announced that it expected a brilliant afternoon's exhibition. The crowd had been gathering for two hours and it looked like another bumper attendance. Many persons were early arrivals who have been at the meet every day since it opened last Saturday.

"I'm going to make a mile a minute on that Boston Light trip," Grahame-White said to-day. "I'm not going to wait until my first flight is beaten. On the next flight I will go lower and horizontal distance between my planes smaller wings than I used in my first flight, called 'racing wings' and I'm going to try them.

"I intend to fight for the Boston Globe's $10,000 prize right up to the last minute of the meeting."

Glenn H. Curtiss made the statement:

"I will try to beat Mr. Grahame-White's speedy Biorlot. I have been adjusting my biplane so as to get the best possible speed and I'm about ready to fly."

Girls Admire Grahame-White.

When Grahame-White reached his hangar to-day he found nearly 100 letters awaiting him. The mail was about of the same sort as that which came to a matinee idol. Most of the letters were from girls. All of the writers wanted to go up with him for a flight in the air. Some of the girls asked for autographs of the daring aviator and others wrote epistles bursting with love for Mr. Grahame-White read his mail and smiled.

A wireless instrument was installed at the Aviation Field to-day, it being attached to a man-bearing kite. This will enable the contest committee to get news quickly on to weather conditions as well as making experiments in the use of wireless in air machines.

Glenn H. Curtiss and W. Starling Burgess spent an hour in conference to-day and it was reported that they had discussed the question of a coalition of the aeroplane building business. Neither of the aviators would talk about the conference. While the two men talked, Mrs. Burgess and Mrs. Curtiss were together and they did not attempt to disturb their husbands.

Cromwell Dixon packed his dirigible balloon to-day and said he was going to New York.

"I've done what I wanted to do. Now I'm going to New York."

Wilbur Wright said to-day that none of his biplanes would enter the Boston Light contest.

"It would be like putting dray horses against racers," he explained.

Offers $100 a Minute.

It was reported to-day that a Boston business man had approached Grahame-White with a proposition to take him up in his machine. The Englishman asked $100 a minute for the trip and the business man took him up. The business man offered to deposit $2,000 in cash with the contest committee to insure payment for the flight. The contest committee talked the matter over and decided that as it was

AIR RESCUE BY DARING AVIATOR THRILLS CROWD

LIVERPOOL, Sept. 9.—The first attempt at rescue in the air, with one aeroplane going to the aid of another, was witnessed at Freshfield to-day, when Aviator Hazinbotham, flying in a Blériot machine, was tumbled from his car and Aviator Patterson, seeing the accident from afar, sped three miles through the air at breakneck speed, carrying his mechanic as a passenger to give what aid he would.

Hazinbotham was making a landing when his Blériot machine suddenly capsized. Hazinbotham had a narrow escape from death. Patterson was three miles away in his machine. Noting that his brother aviator was having trouble with his car he threw open the throttle of his motor and sent his machine to the rescue.

Breathless with excitement the crowds below saw the strange spectacle of one aeroplane going to the aid of another. Patterson swooped his car downward while he and his mechanician held on to the swaying frame.

The spectators cheered the daring act and afterwards when Patterson landed, many crowded around him to congratulate him.

SHIP REPORTED SUNK IS TOWED INTO PORT HERE

With the arrival here to-day of the five-master schooner Nathaniel T. Palmer, Captain E. C. Gardner, with her bowsprit and headgear gone, and the hull for forty feet back of her stern ripped and opened, the mystery of the vessel which was reported to have collided last Sunday night with the Brazilian steamer Tapajos and which was said to have been sunk, by the captain of the latter after he arrived in New York Harbor with its own vessel badly damaged, has been cleared up.

Captain Gardner said to-day that there was a heavy fog last Sunday evening and about 7:30 o'clock, when his ship was forty-five miles southeast of Sandy Hook, the Brazilian steamer Tapajos loomed up out of the darkness with her whistle blowing. He said that just as the Tapajos was giving the third whistle his ship, the Nathaniel T. Palmer, raked the Brazilian with her bowsprit and did considerable damage. The Palmer was on her way from Norfolk to Boston with 4100 tons of coal at the time.

Captain Gardner worked his ship under her own sail for a time and was later picked up by a tug and towed to Boston. He said that it was an utter impossibility to avoid the collision with the Tapajos because of the condition of the weather. He placed the damage to his ship at $5,000.

Col. Roosevelt Replies to Mr. Hearst's Request to "Fight the Bosses"

FREEPORT, Ill., Sept. 9.—Colonel Roosevelt, during his speech here, read an open letter by W. R. Hearst, in which Mr. Hearst advised the Colonel to return to New York and take up the fight on the Republican organization there, saying that if he did so Mr. Hearst would be in sympathy with him. The Colonel said:

I am going back to my State, as mentioned by Mr. Hearst, to fight with the bosses. I will welcome the support of any man who wishes to aid in the fight.

NAVAL COURT TO FIX BLAME FOR EXPLOSION

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—The official investigation into the accident on the battleship North Dakota, in which three men were killed outright and ten others injured, got under way to-day. It is in the hands of the following officers of the fleet, appointed by Rear Admiral Schroeder: Captain C. A. Core of the Delaware, senior officer; Lieutenant-Commander C. V. Price of the Delaware and Lieutenant-Commander A. M. Proctor of the Connecticut.

It was stated simultaneously with the beginning of the investigation that the cause of the explosion in the fuel oil system, would not be made public officially until the investigation is completed. Unofficially it is reported that carelessness on the part of some one in the stock room will be shown and the explosion may have a far reaching effect on account of the fact that oil was being tried out with a view to make it a supplementary fuel for naval use in the future.

Whether the navy department will continue to use oil will be made known, it is believed, at the same time that the report on the North Dakota accident is given to the public.

The wounded are on board the hospital ship Solace and the North Dakota now lies at Hampton Roads, which point she reached early to-day. As a result of the accident the North Dakota will hardly be able to sail from Hampton Roads on Saturday with the first division of the fleet to take part in battle practice off the Virginia coast.

Additional reports, some of a sensational nature, were circulated at Fortress Monroe to-day. One of them said that fire raged in the fire room of the North Dakota for hours following the explosion. Admiral Schroeder, in command of the fleet of which the North Dakota was a part, gave orders that officers on the ill-fated vessel should not discuss the accident in the presence of newspapermen. Captain Albert Gleaves, in command of the North Dakota, is confidently still.

CRIPPEN BEGINS FINAL ATTEMPT TO SAVE LIFE

LONDON, Sept. 9.—With five days in which to gather conclusive proof that his wife still lives, Dr. Hawley Harvey Crippen, accused of the murder of his wife, entered, through his counsel, upon this momentous task to-day as the only means of saving himself from the dire penalty of the English law.

Arthur Newton, the prisoner's counsel, who is directing the international search for Belle Elmore, expresses confidence that he will be successful in proving that the remains found in the cellar of Dr. Crippen's London home were not those of Belle Elmore. He does not undertake to explain whose they are, nor how they came there.

Dr. Crippen is in a more cheerful mood than he has shown yet, but while his confidence grows that of Inspector Dew of Scotland Yard is not waning. Scotland Yard is just as sure of convicting Crippen as Inspector Dew was of finding the man in Canada.

Indications give proof that, when the trial is resumed, fashionable women of trade will make a society event of the affair. "Crimes cases parties" may come into vogue, with the court room filled with the women of social and financial aristocracy who watch the prisoners through gold-mounted lorgnettes and listen with aristocratic interest to the gruesome details as they are presented in evidence.

Some believe that the next session of the case will result in a tremendous sensation. This might be brought about through the attempted exposure by Arthur Newton that a murder had been committed, but not by Crippen and that the remains found were those of some person who has been mysteriously missing.

The intense interest shown by society women in the case strengthens the assertion which has been made from time to time that wealthy and fashionable American and English women in London subscribed to a defence with which to wage the desperate battle for the accused physician's life.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Sept. 9.—Word was received here to-day of the sudden death at Asbury Park, N. J., of Captain Frank T. Timmins appealed and was held in $100. Judge Lummus based his ruling on an English decision contained in the case of a monastery, and which kept a whole village awake. Judge Lummus ruled that the barking and baying of a dog is a similar case. Complaint was made through the Board of Health by Alfred Hadley, a large property owner on Warren street.

FREIGHT WRECK BLOCKS TRAFFIC ON THE B. & A.

PITTSFIELD, Sept. 9—Three cars of a freight train loaded with lira logs were derailed near Huntington, thirty miles east of this place on the Boston & Albany Railroad, at 7:10 today. None of the train crew was killed or hurt.

The log train was an extra, running east and made up of thirty-five freight cars. Huntington, near where the accident occurred, is one of the highest stations on the Boston & Albany line. It is on what is known as Washington Mountain of the east slope of the Hoosacs.

The wreck blocked both tracks for an hour and a half. Eastbound trains coming into Pittsfield were ordered held there. The Twentieth Century Limited from Chicago, the crack flyer of the Boston & Albany, was switched onto the Boston & Maine's Fitchburg division at North Adams to continue its run to Boston over that line.

Wrecking crews and cars were ordered to the scene of the wreck from Springfield and Pittsfield.

London Man of Mystery Probably Lieut. Sweeney.

LONDON—The most baffling case with which the American embassy has ever been called on to deal with stands in a fair way of solution to-day, with all indications pointing to the identity of the young American who has lain in St. George's infirmary for a month suffering from aphasia as Lieutenant John Calvin Sweeney, U. S. N., who disappeared from the United States navy yard at Puget Sound, Washington, on June 9. It is not definitely ascertained that the unknown man is Sweeney, but developments went far toward establishing his identity. John C. Sweeney, who disappeared four months ago on the Pacific coast while in the service of the United States naval department, was graduating from the naval academy at Annapolis in 1905. He is a son of Judge Sweeney of Paris, Texas.

BALLOT LAW'S PROBLEM MAY BAR MURLEY

The congressional nomination candidacy of Former Representative Joseph J. Mur-ley of East Boston, and his right or lack of legal right to have his name on the ballot at the State primaries, promises to result in a contest before the Boston Ballot Law Commission, unless the officials of the Democratic City Committee refuse to send his name to the Election Commissioners for a ballot place, and unless, also, Mr. Murley acquiesces in this action.

President Joseph Maynard of the City Committee, said to-day, "It is the City Committee's duty to give everybody a chance, and not to assume Supreme Court powers in technicalities." Candidate Murley said to-day that he is "in to the finish." Former Alderman Thomas J. Giblin, East Boston neighbor and rival candidate of Mr. Murley, said to-day that he will protest the giving of a place on the ballot to Mr. Murley. A contest before the Ballot Law Commission, therefore, seems certain.

Murley Out, Then in Again.

Mr. Murley filed papers with the City Committee as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Congress in the Ninth district. Later, during the interim allowed for withdrawals, he withdrew. Later still, during the time allowed for substitutions for names withdrawn, he substituted his own name.

There is a dispute as to whether or not he was legally right in substituting his own name for the vacancy caused by his own withdrawal. Those who dispute this right point to the following:

"Acts of 1907, Chapter 560, Section 126.

"A person who is nominated by a nomination paper may, within forty-eight week-day hours succeeding five o'clock of the day fixed for opening nomination papers, withdraw his name from nomination by a request in writing signed by him with his own hand and filed with the Secretary of the City or Town Committee. Thereupon, the Secretary shall immediately give notice of such withdrawal and of the provisions of this section to the person who filed such nomination paper, and such person may, within twenty-four week-day hours succeeding five o'clock of the last day fixed for filing withdrawals, present a NEW NAME on a nomination paper signed by himself with his own hand; otherwise the Chairman or the Secretary of the City or Town Committee may file nomination papers for the vacancy."

One rumor along Beacon street has it that the Murley withdrawal was made in ignorance of the section quoted above.

"Barred," Says Jennings.

Malachi L. Jennings, counsel for Henry M. Whitney in a notable contest before the State Ballot Law Commission three years ago, former official of the Democratic City Committee and a recognized authority on matters pertaining to election law, said to-day that Mr. Murley's name is clearly barred from a place on the ballot by the law quoted above.

HAMLIN HOME, MAKES A PLEA FOR HARMONY

Charles S. Hamlin, sun-browned and hopeful over the prospects of success for the Democratic party in November returned to-day from Maine, where he has been stumping and met a gathering of Democrats from the western part of the State at his Beacon street office.

The gathering took on the form of a reception, as Democrats from all over the State called with proffers of support to Mr. Hamlin in the convention which on October 6 is to nominate the Democratic candidate for Governor.

Among the first callers was Edward A. McClintock of Springfield, to whom a few days ago Mr. Hamlin wrote that if the Democratic convention honored him with the nomination for Governor, he would deem it a duty and a pleasure to accept.

"I am not in any sense an avowed candidate for the nomination," the former Assistant Secretary of the Treasury reported over and over again to his enthusiastic callers. "I want the Democrats to get together in our convention and select for Governor the man whom they consider the most available. I want to see a convention that will be harmonious, a convention of good feeling and of good nature, and then with every Democrat going home and taking his coat off for the nominee.

"I will support, without any reservation, the nominee of that convention. Tariff burdens are bearing heavily upon our people, the promises of the Republican party for a tariff revision in the interests of the masses have not been kept, and to-day we have curtailment in the industries of our State that has brought suffering upon our people and with this curtailment and the consequent depression in business has come the tremendously increased cost in the price of living.

"The burden of high prices and the loss of employment have borne most heavily upon those of our citizens who can ill afford it. Vermont's vote was a rebuke to the Republican party, Maine's vote next week will be a rebuke also. The people are awakening and thinking."

HOLD FORMER BOSTON MAN IN THEFT CASE

William C. Muir, who is under arrest at Los Angeles, Cal., on the charge of grand larceny from Mrs. E. M. Noe, a widow who complained to the police that Muir made love to her, which she reciprocated by giving him her jewelry, is a brother of Reginald H. Muir, who lives with his mother at No. 175 Ashmont street, Dorchester, who was assistant secretary for the late ex-Mayor Hibbard, but now employed as a clerk in the city collector's office.

Mrs. Clara A. Muir, mother of the arrested man, said that she knew nothing of her son's arrest and very little about his movements for a great many years, as he left home when a boy and went West. She stated that her son was married, and that he was about thirty-two years old and had been educated in the Boston schools.

Mrs. Noe accused him of the theft of rings, diamonds and other jewelry to the value of $500. He was held in $2,000 bonds. A woman whom Muir says is his wife was arrested last night on the San Diego police, who say that the jewels he wore answer the description of Mrs. Noe's.

WOMAN TAUGHT ART OF BOXING, WHIPS ROBBER

Because as a convent girl she learned fencing and boxing, Mrs. Cecilia Sowton of No. 10 Upton street, South End, put a snatch thief to flight with a right swing on the point of his jaw. The blow was given instinctively, she says, when the man came up behind her and grasped the hand in which she carried her purse. But the blow went true from force of habit long disused. When the plucky woman started to follow up her advantage the thief took to his heels and escaped.

Mrs. Sowton is the wife of Chief Steward John Sowton of the steamer Indian of the Philadelphia line. She was born in London, coming to this country several months ago. Educated in a convent where the girls were obliged to learn self-defence, she never dreamed that the lessons would ever prove of value.

"I was walking down Washington street, near Compton, my mind preoccupied, when I felt a vise-like grip on my left wrist," said Mrs. Sowton. "The suddenness of it took me by surprise, and I almost dropped the purse which I was carrying in my left hand. Doubtless that was what the thief intended I should do.

"In the smallest fraction of a second I saw an English gymnasium where convent girls boxed and fenced. I was one of them, and the whole scene came back to me in an instant. I swung from the shoulder and felt my knuckles strike the man's jaw.

NEWPORT, Sept. 9.—Mrs. Norman D. Whitehouse of New York, who occupies with Mr. Whitehouse a cottage on Bellevue avenue, returned early this week. Whitehouse off by steamer to New York to find a strange man prowling about the reception room.

Mrs. Whitehouse, who is an expert with rifle and revolver, took from her secretary a revolver and commanded the man to leave the house. The stranger disappeared and a thorough search of the premises showed that nothing was missing, if the stranger had hoped to secure Mrs. White house's jewels he calculated poorly, as they were in the safe.

BROUGHT COLOR TO HER CHEEKS

Tonic Treatment Was What This Buffalo Woman Needed and Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Just Fitted Her Case.

To keep the system in normal condition, the appetite good, the step vigorous, the brain clear and the muscles strong, a tonic is sometimes necessary. With the body thus toned up and the organs active there is a greatly reduced danger from prevalent diseases since the germs are overcome and passed off as nature intended they should be.

Whenever the blood becomes thin and watery or impure the whole system suffers, energy is lacking, vitality is low and the victim often has reason to fear consumption, a danger which actually existed in the following case:

"I am glad to recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills," says Mrs. Roderick D. MacLeay, of No. 8 Parkview avenue, Buffalo, N. Y., "as they have been of wonderful benefit to me. A few years ago I was completely run down through overwork and worry. My blood was thin and watery and I was very pale. I grew gradually worse for a year and was weak and short of breath, especially when I walked up stairs, which I could not do without resting every few steps. I could not even walk across the room without having my heart flutter.

"I was under the doctor's care throughout the entire winter. He said I was in a fit state to run into consumption and that I needed something to build me up. I was not benefited by his treatment and began using Dr. Williams' Pink Pills after I had been sick for six months. I noticed right away that the pills were helping me, for my cheeks began to have some color and my strength returned. I was completely cured after giving the pills a thorough trial. I will be glad if, through this statement of my experience, some other person afflicted as I was is restored to health by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are always the same and are sold only in packages bearing the well-known trade mark, "Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People." Pills sold in any other package or loose, by the dozen or hundred are not the same, whatever the clerk tells you. The genuine are sold by all druggists or will be sent by mail, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box; six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y.

225,000 POUNDS OF COD ARRIVE

Captain Martin Welch of the fishing schooner Lucania put into T Wharf today with the largest cargo of codfish ever received at the pier. In all Captain Welch brought 225,000 pounds of the sacred cod, of which 73,000 pounds were salted and 150,000 fresh. Also in the cargo were 8,000 pounds of haddock.

Early in the season Captain Welch tried mackerel fishing, but seeing that this would be a failure, he tacked around to the western banks after cod. That was six weeks ago. Since that time, he has pushed through his present cargo about $4,000, enough to compensate him for the whole season. The fresh cod was caught within the past week. The chicken fish were sold at T Wharf, and the rest will be taken to Gloucester for curing.

GIRL ATHLETE RIDES 350 MILES ON HORSE

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—Miss Marion Oliver, daughter of General Robert Shaw Oliver, Assistant Secretary of War, has returned to the city after 350 miles of horseback riding over the rugged Indian trails of Arizona and New Mexico during her four weeks' absence. Miss Oliver accompanied her father on his tour of inspection of Southwestern posts and garrisons. With her were Mrs. Herbert Wadsworth, a tireless equestrienne, whose 212 miles in twenty consecutive hours remains the feminine record, and Mrs. Wadsworth's niece, Miss Sinlenoff.

LINER CAPTAIN'S CASE CALLED

The government case against Captain H. M. Benson of the Cunard liner Saxonia, now in port, charged with negligent failure to prevent the landing of seven Chinese stowaways a month ago, will be held before United States Commissioner Hayes in the Federal District Court to-morrow. Captain Benson is under $2,000 bonds to appear.

Arthur W. Hoe, attorney for the immigration authorities at this port, will present the Government's case. Unless objection is raised by Captain Benson's attorney, the hearing will proceed.

The Government case against James Evans, master-at-arms, and William Hackett, quartermaster of the Saxonia's crew, charged with actually bringing in the Chinamen in question, have had a hearing. Both men are now held in Charles Street Jail in default of $2,000 bail each, for a continuance. Their cases are to be taken up again after the hearing on Captain Benson's charges.

ITALY ONCE MORE JARRED BY QUAKE

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—Indications of renewed earthquakes in Italy were recorded at the Georgetown University Observatory by Fr. Tondorf, who to-day made the following statement:

"Well defined tremors were recorded at the Georgetown University Observatory last night. The preliminary tremors began at 8:41 p. m. The maximum shocks were between 8:49 and 8:52 p. m. The tremors died away at 9:11 p. m. The motion was north and south east to west. The approximate distance was about four thousand miles and probably in the same locality as the earthquakes recorded the day before, which were 5,000 miles."

PATROLMAN CALMS TENANTS AT FIRE

The presence of mind of Patrolman John Hanrahan of the Lagrange street station prevented a panic in the three and a half-story brick tenement building at No. 54 Beach street, South End, early to-day, when fire was discovered in the basement. The fire started in a restaurant on the first floor. Patrolman Hanrahan, who heard the alarm, rushed up-stairs and by hard work quieted the families, assuring them they were in no danger and to remain where they were. The fire was quickly subdued at a loss of $200.

GLENN CURTISS WILL TRY TO BEAT THE TIME MADE BY ENGLISHMAN

merely an advertising scheme on the part of the business man that it would be better not to allow him to go up.

There was some talk to-day to the effect that it has cost Mayor Fitzgerald $500 to go up with Grahame-White. Mr. Gilldden said this was not true, as he had arranged for that event himself.

For the encouragement of the amateurs all the events were opened to them as the result of a meeting of the contest committee to-day without the elimination test which required them to make one lap around the course before they were allowed to compete.

Clifford B. Harmon, whose biplane was smashed last Saturday, said to-day that he hoped to have the machine in condition to fly this afternoon. He has had fifteen men at work on it since the accident.

White Still the Hero.

Grahame-White, the brilliant English aviator, is the hero of the Harvard-Boston meet up to date. He leads the field in six of the nine events. He can always be depended upon to entertain the crowd and is so good natured withal that he has made a big hit with the throng who have been in attendance regularly.

W. Starling Burgess and William Hilard were the first amateurs on the field to-day. They spent about an hour each in their biplanes in readiness for some trial flights. The contest committee with Charles J. Glidden at its head met and decided to ameliorate the rules so that it would make it easier for amateurs to get into the competitions.

Will Shoot from Aeroplane.

Demonstration of the possibilities of the aeroplane in a new field it was announced would be made to-day, when one of the Curtiss aviators, probably Charles F. Willard in the Banshee, will take up Lieutenant J. E. Fickel of the 3d Field Artillery, stationed at Governor's Island, who will attempt the difficult feat of shooting with a service rifle from an aeroplane moving at the rate of at least thirty-five miles an hour.

To-day the American aviators are out to put another crimp in the records of Grahame-White, whose versatility with the Farman biplane and his speedy Blériot have given him a big lead during the early days of the meet. As the scores stand it would seem that the Englishman cannot be bested in the speed events which will win the $3,000 prize.

Yesterday he met his first real defeat to open contest. He tried for altitude but a few minutes after Brookins and came down feet shy of the height attained by Brookins, who established a new record for the course by going up 3,860 feet.

At the same time the smiling English man beat Curtiss' record for accuracy. Curtiss had landed within sixty feet and ten inches of the center of the 100-foot distance circle. White's mark is thirty-three feet and four inches.

Yankees Gain on White.

The presence of President Taft and of Mayor Fitzgerald on the field, may have caused the man who wears his cap peak kindwise, to spend more time than his want in social formalities. At any rate, the American drivers stole a march on him and he will have to start early and work hard throughout the day if he is to get back the lost ground to-day.

Brookins is going to keep him busy in the altitude contest, and Johnstone is already has a lead of two points in the duration series. As duration and distance events are closely allied, Johnstone will also be expected to keep the $2000 offered as first prize in the latter event in American hands.

It will rest with Charley Willard and Glenn Curtiss to make the other flights in the effort to maintain the honors for America. Willard or Curtiss will be expected to make a hard fight in the bomb throwing contest, although from present indications Grahame-White is much headed.

Indeed the real interest to-day will come in watching for developments in the $10,000 contest for the fastest time over the Boston Light course. On this the 20-mile course has been made and that was brought through by Grahame-White in 1:5:56.

Curtiss Needs Light Prize.

Glenn H. Curtiss, hailed by American aviators as "The King," is the man who is being watched in this event. Curtiss says little. But his past performance in long distance flying are such that to retain the position he now holds he must go out after the Boston Light prize and keep after it until he wins.

The course is just thirty-three miles. The Blériot machine is supposed to be faster than the Curtiss machine. But Curtiss will drive the famous aeroplane in which he aged from Albany to New York. He had several long conferences with the various officials yesterday in regard to the contest and it is believed that with fair weather conditions he will make his first attempt to-day.

After the apparent ease with which the Blériot machine, driven by Grahame-White, has carried off the speed honors to the course around the field there are many who cannot understand how Curtiss can hope to beat the Englishman in the race down the harbor.

In the race around the light, much of the course is straight away and is in the four long stretches that it is thought the greater power of the Curtiss engine will be developed to the best advantage.

About the hangars this morning there was many a thoughtful look at the motor powers of these two motors. It seems to be the belief of the field that Grahame-White's statement that he has developed a speed of seventy miles an hour will not be borne out when the real test for speed comes.

Many Favor Curtiss.

In other words a number of the mechanicians hold that Curtiss will win out in the final tests for the $10,000 prize. When approached on this question, however, Curtiss does not show any inclination to discuss the matter. He talks entertainingly of the difference of landing on the water and on land, but will not commit himself even by making a guess on the time he will use in making the long flight he refuses to even a rough estimate.

Curtiss is believed to be studying the conditions of the course and planning out his campaign. He announced yesterday that he was practically ready to make his first trial at the course, but that he was very enough in the afternoon and he used his time in other tests.

Curtiss is the only wind blowing, he did not use any of the ten shots allotted to him in the aerial bomb throwing contest. White, pressed always for the time in his efforts to make a strong score, dropped the second eight of his shells and made a score of 12 points.

This increased his lead to fifty points over Curtiss, who now has forty-two to his credit. Willard shows little strength in his contest, yet he is by no means confident that he will come to the front in the next two days. Willard admits that he has been using some of his shells in trying out different methods of shooting from the cramped space from which he drives his ship.

Governor at Meet To-day.

To-day is Governor's Day at the meet and a big crowd is promised. The afternoon program which the crowd of 25,000 witnessed was one of the carefully planned one. Tests in almost every event, including the flight of Brookins's dirigible and the feat that Brookins again showed himself the master in the altitude game combined to give the crowd a fine program.

Before the afternoon's flying started it was seen that there was going to be something in the air almost very minute. Maynard Fitzgerald, if one may judge, would appear in his ride of the little general, mounted upon a new variety of steed.

[illegible] the Mayor did not disappoint. In fact he he out scoring with Grahame-White in the big biplane, his hands free of the supports and waving to his friends and to President Taft, it was a spectacle which made the crowd stand up to cheer its approval. When the Mayor came down on earth he found that for once he could not express his sentiments. But he made a valiant trial. President Taft asked him if the people of Boston were so anxious to get rid of their Mayor that they sought to persuade him to fly away.

Mayor Happy After Flight.

Mayor Fitzgerald laughed happily and answered, "Oh! White's aeroplane is perfectly safe—you know its not run by the Republican machine."

The Presidential party, consisting of President Taft, Miss Helen Taft and her mother and Mr. and Mrs. John Hays Hammond, did not stay long at the field. While they were there, however, a few exhibitions in almost every contest were underway and they were given one of the best opportunities which have been afforded this week to see the birdmen in action.

White did the three laps in 6m. 5 3-5s. He climbed 3,500 feet and in his longest flight of the day stayed in the air for 1:m. 2-5s.

Johnstone went away for a run of thirty-three miles, 3,101 feet in 61m. 42 3-5s. in the distance and duration events.

Curtiss sped about the three laps in 6m. 52 3-5s., his longest flight of the day being five miles and 3,320 feet. Brookins, besides featuring in his flight of 3,860 feet into the air, got a point in the duration event by staying in the air 8h[illegible] minutes and a fraction.

Record in Accuracy.

Johnstone made a try at the slow bat contest, but the engine gave out before it got going, no matter how far he dared throttle down his motor. The result was that he had to be content with one quarter miles in 12m. 59 1-5s., about a minute faster than his team mate, Brookins, did the day before.

Grahame-White made two attempts at the altitude test in the first he rose after running along the ground 1100ft 8in., and in the second he went 600 ft. His trials for accuracy he made good. In his first he landed within 56ft. 5in. of the center, and in the second trial he went within 33ft. 4in. of the goal, the latter figure being the record to date.

Grahame-White carried Capt. James F. Lodge, his aide-de-camp, for a flight yesterday, besides giving Mayor Fitzgerald a ride. Charles F. Willard gave Lieutenant Brickly a ride. All three men were delighted with the experience.

Laughing, but half seriously, Grahame-White offered to take the United States Taft on the ride with him if they wished. Considering all circumstances, the chief executive and his wife were forced to decline the proffered courtesy of the Englishman.

No doubt Governor Draper will be invited to ride to-day. Whether he will or not is not known, but he will accept. At any rate many of the members of the Governor and members of the staff will be on hand to cheer him in the event that he does take a spin.

FOREIGN BIRDMEN COMING AFTER CUP HELD BY CURTISS

PARIS, Sept. 9. France's representation at the international aviation meet at Belmont Park race for the Gordon Bennett cup, which they hope to regain the blue ribbon of the air, has been definitely arranged. Alfred Leblanc, Hubert Latham and Leon Morane, the three French crack aviators, who participated in the October meeting. All three airmen are drivers of monoplanes and in the American contest they will use especially reconstructed racing machines.

In addition to these three French Aero Club sends M. Aubrun and Count Jacques de Lesseps to compete for other prizes.

Italy will send Signor Cattana, and Belgium probably will delegate M. Olieslagers to take part. Neither Spain nor Switzerland will be represented.

M. LeBlanc's assistant in the international balloon contest will be Jacques Faure, the noted French balloonist; Lieutenant Frank P. Lahm and Cortlandt Field Bishop, president of the Aero Club of America, are here, acting for that organization.

FLYER PREDICTS OVER-OCEAN TRIP IN DAY AND NIGHT

LONDON, Sept. 9.—J. B. Moissant, the aviator whose feat in bringing a passenger from Paris to London is fully recognized by experts although it was minimized in the public eye by the long delay in the last stage of his journey, made an interesting prophecy to-day. The occasion was the presentation of a cup given by the Daily Mail.

Moissant said:

"In five years aeroplanes will be flying across the Atlantic in twenty-four hours, in less than two years they will be a monoplane with an engine of 200 horse power, thrusting the machine through the air at 100 miles an hour. We shall then be able to laugh at contrary gusts of wind. By then aeroplanes will no longer be flimsy structures. It will be the aera of the metal aeroplane."

Moissant admitted that engine makers have a lot of trial work to do, but the goal, he thinks, is in sight. He concluded by saying: "Nobody except men who actually fly can gauge the stupendous progress that is now being made toward the perfect machine. I will compete next Summer in the Daily Mail's £10,000 race around England in an all metal aeroplane of my own design, which I will construct in Paris six weeks hence. The world will gasp at the things that will be done in that flight."

WALTER WELLMAN DECLINES DEVICE FOR OCEAN BALLOON

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 10.—Walter Wellman has declined an offer from Rear Admiral Chevalier, Royal Italian Navy, cabled through the American consul at Venice, for the use of a specially patented device for steering the airship during the actual course of the dirigible airship America over the ocean. Wellman says he still believes his city for Bayonne.

"While we appreciate the kindliness of feet, we have no use for his device," Mr. Wellman explained. "For the reason that Melvin Vaniman, chief engineer of our expedition, holds a patent on a similar device, which has been tested and found to be of no consequence.

It was explained that ships at sea have failed to utilize the device, as made there. An airship traveling long distances, sometimes out of sight of earth or water, must have special appliances, especially designed to keep it in touch with the earth.

EGGS FROM CHINA TO FEED PHILADELPHIA

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 9.—Sixty thousand dozens of frozen Oriental eggs, which had been carried half-way around the world in the refrigerating plants of different steamship lines, were landed from the American liner Merion and placed in cold storage plants here to await sale. The duty on them is five cents a dozen. Notwithstanding the many miles which the eggs have been carried, the temperature maintained aboard them has never been higher than fourteen degrees Fahrenheit. They were stowed away in forty-four pounds cases, and arrived in good condition.

CHAUFFEUR THOUGHT VICTIM A ROBBER

WATERBURY, Ct., Sept. 9.—Cyrus R. Fanschke, chauffeur for W. A. Wood, an automobile manufacturer of Kingston, N. Y., is held here, charged with being responsible for the death of Michael Hourihan, thirty-five, of Watertown. From privity here he told the police that while he had hit a man, he thought he was a highwayman and so he did not stop. Fanschke said: "Twice he asked the police if anything had been heard of it, but later he was detained for a Newtown officer.

SURVIVES 5,500-VOLT CURRENT

BEVERLY, N. J., Sept. 9.—Having withstood for fifteen minutes the 5,500-volt current from an arc light wire, George W. Lovekind, aged 40, a resident of this city, the courage of his two friends, Marshal Lewis Stinger and Fireman Edward Bates, who finally disentangled him. Lockwood is badly burned in several places on the body and the current was so strong that the soles of his shoes were burned off. While his condition is serious, this evening he is looked for, which is regarded as marvelous.

The circulation of the AMERICAN is 200,000 more than its next highest competitor and 75,000 more than all the other evening papers of Boston combined.

MAYOR TELLS HOW HE LIKED HIS AIR TRIP

Mayor Fitzgerald, who made a flight yesterday with Grahame-White, the English aviator, thinks there is less danger in flying in an airship than in riding in a fast-moving automobile. He thus describes his sensations during the air trip:

"The sensation experienced in flying through the air is about the same as that felt in moving swiftly over a good, level road in an automobile. It does not seem to me that, with airships properly constructed and in the hands of men with experience, there is as much danger as there is in a fast-moving automobile. I was very glad, indeed, to accept the invitation of Mr. Grahame-White. He is one of the finest men I ever met and inspires confidence at the outset. The fact that I sat close to him and waved my hand shows the ease with which I rode. I would not hesitate to go again when opportunity offered, and I think that aerial navigation is bound to be used more and more every year. The city of Boston and its Mayor will certainly take advantage of every opportunity to promote this new means of navigation.

"Flying is very exhilarating, but not to the degree that one would expect. The birdlike sensation is lost because of the sharp turns, judging by the one moment that I found the craft in a more or less current, hesitating, fluttering and then turning over on its side.

"That was the only moment in the seven minutes and more that we were whirled through the air at the rate of fifty miles an hour that I was not high enough in the air to make the blood surge through one's body above the normal flow. In another flight the great aviator had straightened the ship out and we were sailing along as easily as one would rock in a chair.

"Whirling along a road in an automobile at the rate of fifty miles an hour is far more exhilarating than the sensation that I experienced in my air flight with Mr. Grahame-White yesterday."

MAYOR DESCRIBES SENSATIONS IN AIR

I was a trifle disappointed to find that the sensation of being in the air was not as surprising as I had anticipated. I had expected something marvellous in the matter of feeling, while I found that it was not nearly as exhilarating as a rush in an automobile at the rate of fifty miles an hour.

It was a remarkable feeling of contentment instead of one of excitement.

It is my opinion that aeroplanes will shortly be so perfected as to be safer than autos, especially if the present progress in aerial navigation is continued.

Possibly the only feeling of discomfort I had was in coming down, and that was slight. It was very similar to that experienced in an express elevator coming down the shaft of a high building—only intensified.—Mayor Fitzgerald, after his flight with Grahame-White.

SHUMAN PRIZE FOR AVIATORS

A. Shuman & Co. have offered two prizes for events in the aviation meet. One is a first prize silver cup for the amateur slow leg and a second prize of $500 for the professional slow lap. The silver cup is now displayed in one of the Shuman Corner windows and is especially admired. It is a beautiful example of the silversmith's art and very graceful in shape. Other features of interest in the same window are a number of pictures of Willard in flight and many other photographs of flying machines and fliers.

A. Shuman & Co. are holding a school sale of children's clothing as an Aviation Week feature. Prices have been specially reduced, and the house is giving to boys buying suits one of the "all-fliers," the official souvenir of the aero meet. This is a recent invention which flies 600 feet.

SCHWAB ENGAGES SCHUMANN-HEINK

SOUTH BETHLEHEM, Pa., Sept. 9.—Through the philanthropic motives of C. M. Schwab, the steel magnate, who is a great lover of music and who, as a family, spends $13,500 a year in support of a band among his Bethlehem Steel Company employes, Bethlehem, Easton and Allentown will probably have the greatest musical season in their history this coming Winter. Now Schwab announces that he is ready to guarantee the expenses incident to securing Mme. Schumann-Heink to appear in Bethlehem, Allentown and Easton in connection with the coming annual Winter concerts of the Lehigh Valley Band.

ENGLISH STRIKE OF SHIPBUILDERS GROWS

LONDON, Sept. 9.—Indications are today that the lockout of the 50,000 holder-makers employed by shipbuilders at Newcastle will grow into one of the most extensive strikes in the history of England. Reports from various union headquarters show that the men are voting against the proposal of giving assurances that the Industrial Conference decision that the national agreement of two years ago will henceforth be regarded as inviolable.

AIRSHIPS AND WIRELESS WIN SHAM BATTLE

ELBING, Prussia, Sept. 9.—The Imperial army manoeuvres opened with a successful dash of an invading division theoretically designated as Russian. The defenders fell back under a powerful attack, their weakness having been exposed by the enemy's aerial scouts.

Emperor William and Princess Victoria Luise witnessed the fight, in which 85,000 participated. They comprised the First Army Corps, under command of General Kinck, which was designated as the invading Russian "Blues," and the Seventeenth Army Corps, commanded by General Mackensen, the defending "Reds." Each corps was supplemented with a dirigible balloon, occupied by a crew of scouts.

The original battlefield lay between the rivers Vistula and Passarge in the vicinity of Koenigsberg and Danzig on the southern coast of the Baltic Sea.

At dawn the Blues airship, Parseval II., ascended and discovered the real weakness of the Reds' position behind a screen of unsupported cavalry. The enemy's situation was flashed to headquarters by wireless from the Parseval II., and the Blues forthwith drove the Reds from all of the bridges over the Elbing river. The defenders, unable to withstand the onslaught, burned the bridges and fell back.

Pressing up to a point below Elbing the invaders constructed pontoons and threw their entire cavalry with a division of machine guns and two regiments of quick fires across the stream. The horses of the cavalry swam beside the pontoons, the whole advance presenting a spectacle that excited forth expressions of admiration from the foreign observers.

WONDERFUL CURE OF SORE HANDS

Skin Peeled and Flesh Got Hard and Broke—Blood Flowed in Fifty Places—"Single Box of Cuticura Ended Suffering."

"About eleven years ago I was troubled with sore hands, so sore that when I would put them in water the pain would very nearly set me crazy, the skin would peel off and the flesh would get hard and break. There would be blood flowing in nearly fifty places on each hand. Words could never tell the suffering I endured for three years. I tried everything that I was told to use for fully three years, but could get no relief. I tried at least eight different doctors, but none of them seemed to do me any good, as my hands were as bad when I got through doctoring for as when I first began. I also tried many remedies, but none of them ever did me one cent's worth of good. I was discouraged and heartsore. I would feel so bad mornings when I got up I did not think I had to go to work and stand the pain for ten hours, and I often felt like giving up my position.

"Before I started to work mornings I would have to wrap every finger up separately, so as to try and keep them soft and then wear gloves over the rags to keep the grease from getting on my work. At night I would have to wear gloves in bed, in fact I had to wear gloves all the time. After doctoring for three years, and spending much money, a single box of Cuticura Ointment ended all my sufferings. It's been eight years since I used any and I don't know what sore hands are now, and never lost a day's work while using Cuticura Ointment. Thomas A. Chaney, 310 N. Montgomery St., Trenton, N. J., Nov. 11, 1909."

A single set of Cuticura Soap and Ointment is often sufficient, rendering it the most economical treatment for affections of the skin and scalp. Sold throughout the world. Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Sole Props., 135 Columbus Ave., Boston, U.S.A.

Prominent Figures in the Eucharist Congress

BIG PARADE OF CHILDREN AT MONTREAL

MONTREAL, Sept. 9.—A sudden heavy downpour of rain necessitated a postponement of the open air mass and sermon by Archbishop O'Connell of Boston, which had been arranged for this forenoon and which had been looked forward to as one of the most important as well as one of the most picturesque features of the Eucharistic Congress.

The hour for the mass had been fixed at 8 o'clock. At 8 o'clock the rain stopped and the sun broke through the clouds. Worshippers from all parts of the city hastened to the mountain side and thousands had arrived there before it had become generally known that the function had been postponed. There was great disappointment in consequence.

It was announced that the open air mass and sermon would take place tomorrow morning. The only other public event of large interest set for today was the children's parade at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon. It was expected that from 15,000 to 20,000 children would participate in the parade and later pay their respects to Cardinal Vannutelli.

The next Eucharistic Congress, two years from now, will be held in the United States, probably in New York city. This means that New York will probably see the great est number of American Catholics ever assembled at one time.

The American bishops and priests are heartily pleased with the selecting of New York. Preparations for the forthcoming event will be taken up immediately by Archbishop Farley of New York, and in fact, following the arrival of Cardinal Gibbons in this city, the primate of the church in the United States and the New York prelate have already had a long conference on the subject.

At the city hall reception just preceding Cardinal Gibbons passed along with the crowd and warmly grasped the Boston cardinal's hand and knelt before him to receive his blessing.

Cardinal Gibbons then went along and made his way downstairs again and as he reached the second floor the throng crowd cheered him time and again. It was a marked contrast, and the cardinal's countenance lighted up and as he passed along he continuously kept lifting his blessing to the people who knelt as he appeared.

SEEK $77,000 IN AUTO SUITS

Seven suits asking damages of $77,000 for injuries received in automobile accidents were filed to-day in the East Cambridge courts. Daniel Heath of Swampscott is sued for $50,000 by Joseph Picard, as Everett minor, who says that he was knocked down and permanently injured by Heath's auto on the Revere Beach parkway at Everett on November 1, 1909. The suit is brought by William R. Marshall, as next friend of the boy.

Two suits for $7,000 against E. J. Richards of Fitchburg were filed by Mrs. Mary A. Beverly and her husband, William F. Beverly, of Ayer, who allege that on May 14, 1910, Mrs. Beverly was knocked down by Richard's machine near Sandy Pond, Ayer.

Edwin C. Brooks of Cambridge is sued by Ralph Bryden of Arlington for $5,000 for loss of his wife's services. Mr. Bryden alleges that on November 12, 1909, his wife while riding in an auto on Fresh Pond Lane, Cambridge, was run into by Brooks's machine and injured.

Three suits for $5,000 each are filed against Margaret J. Rollins of Salem, by John P. Gale, Mrs. Edna H. Gale, his wife, and John H. Gale, his son, all of Tewksbury.

MILL CHILDREN IN DEPLORABLE STATE

The public doesn't realize that notwithstanding all the laws that have been passed by the different State legislatures, the deplorable condition of the children working in the mills as depicted by the play is only too true. Recently Mr. Ryan and myself were on a trip through the South, during the course of which we visited some of the mills of Camden, South Carolina. The condition of the families was pitiful. The houses in which they lived and which belonged to the company were so poorly constructed that on damp days the linens, muslin and dannels had to be hung outside.—John Barry Ryan, young millionaire capitalist, after seeing "A Matter of Money" at theatre.

The song hit, "Dreamy Eyes," sung in the musical production, "A Night on a Houseboat," will appear in next Sunday's Boston Sunday American.

TARIFF BOARD TO BEGIN WORK

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—September 22 the tariff board will meet in this city and lay the foundation for a scientific investigation of what are regarded as the most complete schedules of the Payne-Aldrich law. The now famous schedule K, the woolen schedule, which has been both sharply attacked and strongly defended, will have first consideration. The cotton schedule and the metal schedule will follow in the order named. It is understood the board hopes to have at least five schedules thoroughly scrutinized during its first year's work and it is said such a plan has President Taft's approval.

Whether the fact that the board is meeting in Washington the same week that President Taft has called the cabinet to the White House for several days' work behind closed doors has any significance no one here attempts to say. It is generally accepted as a fact, however, that another revision of the tariff to be made schedule by schedule as may be needed, will be one of the subjects discussed at the White House conference.

The polite invitation of the Ward 20 "Tigerette" to Former Congressman William S. McNary to speak at their rally in the local wardroom this evening has been politely turned down. A similar invitation to Alderman James M. Curley has been accepted. The club manager who was sent to invite McNary was told that the South Boston man would not speak from the same platform with Curley, Congressman O'Connell will be too busy elsewhere to attend the rally.

Petitions for a referendum on direct nominations fairly rained into the office of the Secretary of State to-day. The work done by Representative Riley of Malden has borne good fruit. The returns showed that Senator Arthur L. Nason of Haverhill, and Representative Russell Wood of Cambridge, did most of the work on the Republican end.

Mayor Fitzgerald was up in the air yesterday. But only for about seven minutes. Which brings to mind a little song that Fitz composed one night last Winter when he was trying to cover Boston's twenty-five millions:—

"Gee! I wish that my name was Wright,
Awh I'd own an airship flue.
I'd go to weddings, dances and wakes,
And sing at each "Sweet Adeline."
From morn 'till night I'd flit about—
And put my rivals all to rout.
Oh, I wish I had an airship!
Gee! I wish my name was Wright!"

It is now up to His Honor to compose a new ballad and dedicate it to Grahame-White. Or it is to be hoped to give the Mayor a couple of rides.

Too bad the Transcript didn't know about Fitz's air trip before it went to press with the following editorial note in its editorial page:—

"The president won't go up with the aeroplanes. They will engage passage on Mr. Wilbur's safe and sane dirigible."

Or was there some hidden meaning to the word "prudent"? (The dictionary coupon is on Page 2.)

"Timithy Contracts and Contract Labor" will be the subject of a meat bit of oratory by Former Representative Thomas J. Fay of Ward 18 to-night, at the corner of Centre and Day streets, Jamaica Plain. Thue, 8 p. m. Tom and "Tim" are rival candidates for Senatorial honors in the Seventh Suffolk district.

Former Councilman Thomas M Joyce, candidate for the Democratic nomination for the Governor's Council from Ward 17, is conducting a door bell campaign. He has covered seven of the nine precincts in the ward already, and if pledges count for anything, he will receive 1,500 votes in the coming primaries. Joyce is not "meddling" in the Congressional fight. He is opposed, however, to Councilman "Jim" Curley, one of the candidates.

Dr. William F. Brown of No. 1 Vine street, Ward 17, will be treasurer with the Fitzgerald campaign, is supporting Congressman O'Connell in his campaign for renomination. Up to last June he was friendly with Councilman Curley. Last September he allowed Curley to use the lawn in front of his house, which is close to the Vine Street Church, for an open-air rally. The Mount Pleasant Club, which was opposed to Curley, was holding a rally in the church at the same time. This year Dr. Brown says Curley will have to find some other lawn for rallying purposes.

ENTERTAIN AGED HOME INMATES

Judge and Mrs. Joseph J. Feely entertained a party of old people from the Mount Pleasant Home on Elm Hill avenue, Roxbury, at their residence on Pope's Hill, Dorchester, where they had a splendid view of the aviation flights. The aged people were taken by automobile and after the events were given a tea. Among those who were present was one lady of ninety-three and another of ninety-two, neither of whom had ever ridden in an automobile before.

Waxler, of 725 Mifflin St., one of the friends to whom I recommended your malt, and who was generally worn out, is so pleased with the results and benefits derived from the use of same as I am and we determined to give our testimony, hoping that it will be the means of helping some poor sufferers to better health, like ourselves." E. Weinstock, No. 44 No. 52d St., Philadelphia, Pa.

ROOSEVELT MAY BE CALLED IN GRAFT CASE

NEW YORK, Sept. 9.—The startling report became current to-day that former President Theodore Roosevelt may be called as a witness before the legislative investigating committee, which is in session in this city engaged in the pursuit of uncovering graft at Albany.

Colonel Roosevelt was Governor of New York State at the time the transportation bill was passed, which bill is a sort of pivotal point in the scandal. The ex-President may be asked to testify upon his return from the West.

Testimony already brought out shows that many Legislators, prominent among them Senator Goodsell, former Assemblyman Louis Bedell, former Assemblyman James F. Rogers, former Speaker Nixon, former senators Grady and Aldis and others associated with them, made large sums of money by speculating in the stock of the transportation company just before the bill became a law. It was during this period of speculation, it is charged, that Mr. Bedell was at the secret of the Republican committee, of which Mr. Bedell was a member. This speculation kept up until after the bill had passed, and Mr. Bedell testified that he even bought some of the stock while the bill was awaiting Governor Roosevelt's signature.

So many peculiar incidents about this bill, the manner of its passage and how it came to be drafted, have developed since the inquiry began, that it is believed Colonel Roosevelt will be asked to testify and clear up some of the points which remain a mystery because of the bad memories of the witnesses examined so far have developed.

With never a cent of actual money deposited by himself, Mr. Bedell, who was a power in the Legislature during the days that Odell was Republican boss of the State, admitted yesterday he had been able to do as he pleased with a personal account amounting to more than $24,000, which had been placed to his credit with the brokerage firm of Billingsley & Company.

Of this amount he actually drew out and deposited nearly $ 22,000 in cash, although when this period account began he had just closed up a mother account he had with the firm to $ 7,000 this with Colonel Rogers, the boss plot from Broome County, and former Senator Green of Binghamton, and to which he owed the brokerage firm more than $7,000. This little indebtedness was never mentioned by the brokers, but this why Mr. Bedell could not explain.

It appeared from the testimony brought out by M. Linn Bruce, counsel to the committee, that a number of persons had a habit of depositing money to Bedell's credit whenever they thought he needed it.

HOW BIG IS BOSTON? CHANCE TO WIN $50

How big is Boston? Every one wants to know. What the census figures will show is something every one in Boston is thinking about now. The Boston American will give $50 in cash to those who make the nearest estimates to the population of Boston as shown by the census taken this year. Send your estimate to the Boston American. Fill in this coupon:

My estimate of the population of Boston is .....

Name .....

Address .....

Cut out this coupon when filled in and mail it to CONTEST EDITOR, BOSTON AMERICAN, P. O. Box, No. 227, Boston, Mass.

This is a splendid opportunity. Everyone is interested in the figures the census enumerators are giving out. Everyone who lives in Boston wants to know just how big this city has grown to be, how much it has increased in population in the past ten years.

The Boston American, just to stimulate the efforts of those who are thinking about this now, will give $50 in cash to those whose estimates come closest to the official figures the Census Bureau will give out, showing how great this city is. Men, women and children may compete. The prizes are to be awarded as follows:

Twenty-five dollars for the first best estimate.

Ten dollars for the second best estimate.

Five dollars for the third best estimate.

One dollar each for the next ten best estimates.

The population of Boston in 1905 was 595,380. This was 11 per cent. greater population than shown by the official census of 1900. Now if Boston has grown at the same rate for the past five years Boston is a city of 629,868 persons.

This, however, is but an estimate. One estimate until the real figures are made public is as good as another. The official figures may be far different from this estimate.

Now is the time to get busy and make out your estimates and send them to the CONTEST EDITOR, for the census enumerators are likely to issue their figures at any time now.

MEXICO GIVES DAY TO WOMAN

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 9.—This day was set apart in the Mexican centennial celebration as a commemoration of the part played by womanhood in the history of the republic. This foremost the new normal school for women, the most imposing institution of its kind in the national capital, was dedicated. Public officials in addresses paid tribute to the women of Mexico, who labored in the good old era working in the present for the betterment and uplift of their sisters.

A procession of brilliantly uniformed soldiers gave the typical touch of color to the day's scene. Practically all the distinguished visitors to the celebration were either present or took part in the dedicatory ceremonies. The program also included the placing of memorial tablets in the houses formerly occupied by Andres Quintana and Leona Vicario, a national heroine.

MANAGER FOUND DEAD IN BUSHES

RED BANK, N. J., Sept. 9.—The body of Frederick F. Gardner, general manager of the Shore Electric Company, which operates between this town, Rumson and Seabright, was found in some bushes about six miles southwest of here, near the tracks of the Central Railroad of New Jersey. TAFT ON RECORD AS FAVORING THE PLAN TO FORTIFY CANAL

BY WILLIAM HOSTER.

BEVERLY, Sept. 9.—The Panama Canal will be fortified.

President Taft has himself been committed to a scheme of fortification for the canal ever since his old days in the War Department, and there is a very definite understanding among those close to him that he has not changed his mind since he became President.

According to the understanding, the President regards the treaty between the United States and Great Britain as giving this country all the right that is necessary to fortify the canal. The question is merely one of interpretation, and the President chooses to interpret the treaty as favorable to the fortification of the canal by the United States. Article 3 of the treaty, which bears date of February 22, 1902, provides among other things:

"The canal shall never be blockaded, nor shall any right of war be exercised nor any act of hostility be committed within it. The United States, however, shall be at liberty to maintain such military police along the canal as may be necessary to protect it against lawlessness and disorder."

Clause Authorizes Fortification.

This specific provision, which gives the United States the right to "maintain such military police along the canal," etc., is understood to be sufficient to warrant the President in deciding that the canal shall be fortified. In other words, the President believes that this clause authorizes the United States to guard and protect the canal by military means.

It is not intended that any nation shall be barred from its use in time of war; the absolute neutrality of the canal is guaranteed under the treaty for all time. But the treaty constitutes the United States as of right the midshipman of the canal as well as its neutrality, and the administration will hold that it would be absurd in these circumstances to suppose that this nation was not endowed with the right to take such military measures as in the judgment of its officials are necessary to amply and sufficiently guard the canal at all times.

What if an evil-disposed or irresponsible nation in time of war—because all nations are to have free use of the canal—should try to destroy it or put it out of use for a critical period to serve its own ends?

Ordinary Methods a Failure.

Ordinary police power could not cope with such an anarchist among nations. But "such military police along the canal as may be necessary to protect it against lawlessness and disorder," quoting the treaty once more; that is to say, adequate fortifications, would enable the United States to forstall any such action.

As the President's policy is understood, therefore, it is his idea that the treaty under this interpretation gives the United States all the authority necessary to fortify the canal, and the canal will be fortified in accordance with this interpretation. This much is absolutely certain.

It is probably not generally known in this connection that the plans for the fortification of the canal, with slight modifications made necessary by unforeseen circumstances, are those which were made by a commission acting under Mr. Taft's supervision when he was Secretary of War. That fact alone he saw the necessity for fortifications, and it was under his initiative that an army commission visited the Isthmus and selected the places on both the Atlantic and Pacific sides where the big guns will ultimately be placed. Recently another commission visited the Isthmus and ratified the plans formerly made.

Taft Selected Goethals.

It is a curious circumstance also that President Taft selected Colonel Goethals, the man who is digging the canal, for that important post. Colonel Goethals was one of the army engineers originally sent by Taft to select the proper sites for the canal fortifications, and it was in consequence of the marked ability displayed by Goethals that, when the time came to put an army man in charge of the work, Taft recommended his selection as ditch digger.

It is known that Goethals is in thorough sympathy with the President's views with regard to fortifying the canal.

Incidentally, while the President and he are both publicly naming January 1, 1915, as the date for the opening of the canal, Taft and Goethals are both striving with might and main to have the ditch opened considerably earlier.

It may perhaps be worth a passing note, speaking of fortifying the canal, that Colonel Goethals told the writer at Culebra during the occasion of Mr. Taft's last visit to the Isthmus that several skilful Japanese artists had been detected at different times making elaborate sketches of the canal work. It might reasonably be asked what Japan wants with "sketches of the canal if it is to be neutralized and free to all nations in war or peace?

On the forthcoming visit of the President to Panama the question of fortifying the canal will in all probability be settled definitely. The President is going to take a general survey of the big project. There are half a dozen problems that await his decision. He regards the completion of the canal as one of the big responsibilities of his administration and the fortifying of the canal as not one of the smallest of the tasks.

HENRY HALL, LOCAL BOXER, KNOCKED OUT

EASTPORT, Me., Sept. 9.—Henry Hall, the colored middleweight of Boston, was knocked out in the early part of the fourth round by Tom Sawyer of Portland.

In the opening round Hall showed great cleverness. The second and third rounds were even. Both men bored fiercely and body blows were frequent.

In the fourth Hall received a right swing on the jaw and went down for the count, but was quickly in his corner. Both men were in good condition having been examined by a physician before the bout started.

When the bell rang to start the first round Burns feinted and then landed a right to the jaw, the Bronx boxer going down for the count.

In the other bouts Eddie Kelly beat Paddy Meehan in six rounds, while his brother, Harvey Kelly, stopped Charley Seiger of Jersey City in two rounds.

PLANTS WIN POINT IN SUIT

The Thomas G. Plant Company and Thomas G. Plant, individually, won the first point to-day in the shoe machinery litigation, when Judge Rugg of the Supreme Judicial Court denied the motion of the United Shoe Machinery Company, that the plea filed by Sherman L. Whipple, counsel for the defendants, be stricken from the files of the court, on the ground that they did not sufficiently raise the question at issue.

Judge Rugg said: "Without ruling that a motion to strike a plea from the files would be proper under our system of equity pleading, I am clearly of the opinion that such a motion does not lie respecting the plea filed in this case. A decree may be entered denying the motion. If the plaintiff desires, a decree may be entered, further extending the time within which it may act under Rule X of the equity rules of this court until and including September 13, 1910."

The rule referred to by Judge Rugg provides that if a plea or demurrer is not set down for hearing within fifteen days from the time of filing the bill, the bill upon motion may be dismissed.

Free-for-all .....Gallagher

The Harvester, 2.02, the world's champion stallion, starts today in the free-for-all trot, the feature event of the closing day's program at the Grand Circuit races at Charter Oak Park, Hartford, meeting the crack Boston pair Sonoma Girl, 2.04¾, and Bob Douglas, 2.06¾.

Baron May, Allan Winter, Margin, Paderewski, Sterling McKinney and Jack Leyburn are also named for the event, but only Baron May and Margin seem likely to start.

While The Harvester's winning is assured it should be a smashing good harness contest, as Girl and Bob Douglas for the second honors, and the duel between them will be full of interest.

After a week's delay Chain, 1.58¾, the champion trotter, will start in an attempt to lower his wagon record of 2.01, driven by his owner, C. K. G. Billings.

Dudie Archdale and Willy, the English stallion, should repeat their clever race seen in the recent Massachusetts stake here, while Senator Hale, who has trailed at Readville, will be eagerly watched in the 2:17 trot. The 2.06 pace looks rather light with Anda H. about the best of a poor field. The entries:

Free-for-all trot—The Harvester, Sonoma Girl, Bob Douglass, Baron May, Allan Winter, Margin, Paderewski, Sterling McKinney, Jack Leyburn. The Harvester to win in an interesting race.

2:16 trot—Dudie Archdale, Willy, E. D. M., Wataga, Baron Dell, Oxford Boy, Jr., Sable Maid. Dudie Archdale will be the choice.

2:16 pace—Anda H., Lottie P., Joe, Sable Mate, Alice Mack, Major Strong, Castlegan. Anda H. looks the best.

2:17 trot—Senator Hale, Anita Arlington, Oakland Fisher, Camera Pearl Pauline, Major Wellington, Nebico, Maddie Grannett, Henry Winter, Miss Winter, Tom Dee, Orleans.

A clever, open race should be seen with Senator Hale looking pretty good for the honors.

The fourth day's card at Hills Grove looks very classy, with three races in which the horses are splendidly matched, and it will take the seventh son of a prophet to pick the winners. There should be speculation aplenty for the events are all certain to be well fought, and the fast time should prevail down upon the Appaising road. The entries:

2:15 pace—Thoughtful, Charlie Miller, Louis Hiss, Fred W., Sir Albert, Robe Tonoco, X Ray, Mary Hoo, Gold Star. Lester Dore should cop with Gold Star.

Gallagher, 2.02¾, the Boston pacer, starts to-day in the Green Mountain $10000 stake in the free-for-all trot and pace at the Rutland, Vt., fair. The race should be one of the best seen in the rural open New England half-mile tracks. The field: Gallagher, Fred W., Sir Albert, Robe Tonoco, X Ray, Mary Hoo, Gold Star, Lester Dore should cop with Gold Star.

BASEBALL NEWS NOTES

Doc White announced that he has signed up a baseball quartet to do ten weeks on the vaudeville stage this Winter. The old pitching wizard will not only pull over the slab, but will bat, field and run the bases. The quartet is composed of White, Artie Hofman, Addie Joss and Jimmy Sheckard. They will sing several songs composed by White, and a vaudeville manager has offered them ten weeks.

* * *

William S. Yawkey, part owner of the Detroit Tigers, won the $12,000 sum, not counting the decimals, has found a way to help spend his money. He is on his honeymoon.

* * *

The Washington catchers will probably have more passed balls than those of any other club this season. Cause, backstopping the speed of Walter Johnson. A ball will burst through now and then.

* * *

Every world's series since 1884 has been won by one great catcher. Buck Ewing, Jack Milton Bronn, it may be King Cole. It may be Jack Coombs or Hollis Bresnahan.

* * *

Campbell is one of the hardest men in either league to stop in a double play. He puts in tremendous speed covering the last few yards of the distance to first base.

* * *

And nobody put in a bid for Cravath! This terrible slugger is considered a dead one, despite his fine work.

* * *

Hippo Shannon is one of the best rungetters in the American Association. He can always get around the cushions, some way or another.

* * *

No manager has come near the Cub record of players used in one game—nineteen. That was in the twelve-inning affair the Giants two weeks ago. The record will probably last for many years to come.

* * *

Tom Easterly is not playing the field for Cleveland and is doing some terrific hitting. Queer that they never thought to use him in the gardens before.

* * *

Now that the season is so far advanced that his team can't do anything, young Baker of the Cleveladds is winning game after game in brilliant style.

* * *

Won't somebody stop Walter Johnson? He fanned eight of the Athletics Saturday and ran up his total to 285. Looks as if he'd beat Waddell's great record of 349.

* * *

Tom Downey's disabled leg is mending nicely, and he will soon be as agile as ever. He will carry a large scar as a permanent memento of the spikes.

* * *

Down Washington way they are giving Kid Elberfeld a lot of praise for the showing of the Senators. The Kid's gameness and aggressiveness have done the fellows under McAleer a lot of good.

* * *

Here is the limit. Ten years ago a scribe said that Cy Seymour was too slow for the big league. The other day he came out with the announcement his judgment had been vindicated. That, of course, was after Cy's bat had been chased to the minors.

* * *

Washington this year spent $20,000 for new players. This sum does not include the money paid for the men who were secured by the draft.

* * *

The tallest battery in baseball will be in action when the Naps and the Reds play for the championship of Ohio after the regular season. Falkenberg will be the pitcher, and Larry McLean the catcher for Cincinnati. Naturally the men will not work together. Both men are six feet five and one-half inches tall.

* * *

It was well for Ed Koney, the big first baseman of the Cardinals, that the national commission ruled against the Cubs storming tour of the all-star teams. Koney had been selected as first baseman of the National team, and said he was going. President Robison said he would be fined and suspended if he did. Koney said he would go just the same. Now, no one will ever know whether the first baseman or the president would have surrendered.

* * *

Wonder what Floyd Kroh thinks of the American Association. The St. Paul club hammered him for two runs in the first inning he pitched after going down from Chicago.

* * *

Down in Philadelphia they have named the Phillies "Doolin's Dutch." The Philadelphia fans may consider the title appropriate.

* * *

Harry Bemis, the old Nap catcher, may never report to that club again. He was given a furlough and told to go home. The report is that an attempt will be made to dispose of him at once.

RED SOX NOW IN STRUGGLE FOR SECOND PLACE

BATTING ORDER.

ATHLETICS.		BOSTON

The danger signal is out. If the Red Sox lose this afternoon's game with the Athletics they drop out of second place to which they have been clinging so tenaciously for the last few days.

The Highlanders have been creeping up slowly but surely, until they are to-day on an equal footing with the Speed Boys. A win for them and a loss for Boston means goodby to second position, perhaps for the remainder of the season.

Accordingly the Speed Boys have more than one reason for playing the game of their lives against Connie Mack's boys, who have already taken two out of the first three games by the smallest possible margin. Errors, and errors alone, have been responsible for these last two defeats. Philadelphia was entitled to both games, but should have won neither.

It has been the old, old story. Connie Mack's team has shaded the Red Sox just a little, but that little was enough to put out of a tight hole, and just enough to win the game by a hairbreadth. Some call it luck, and some say that it is home head playing. The fans take their choice, but personally I am for the Farmer theory and the knockers in the latter.

However, the Speed Boys, if such they are, have one more chance to show what they are good for against the coming Athletics. When Boston plays to form, the Phillies have nothing on them when it comes to speed or pitching. In fact the pitching honors have been fairly even this week. But the best way that it is bound to can't win games if he is backed up by men in the habit of fingling with every ball they catch.

But that won't happen this afternoon, because Dr. Dunham is now getting ready to take the final game from the Athletics. He'll take it easy.

The Doves played better baseball yesterday than many expected. Much to the surprise of the Giants, they held them to 3 the score, 1 to 0, in a ten-inning game. It is even said that the Boston team would have won the game had the game not been called. The Doves outbatted the Giants, 8 to 6, and hit Wiltse almost at will. To-day is the last of the Giant series, and consequently the last time the Doves will have a chance to take revenge on New York for her constant victories.

GREER OUT TO ROW CANADIAN CRACK

Frank Greer, who has been singularly successful in coaching crews at Halifax this Summer, is home for the season. Greer, however, is negotiating for a race with Eddie Durgan of Toronto later in the season. Greer has been asked to take part in a regatta of the Canadian city in which it is expected that Arnst will compete on his way back home. Greer figures that the inducements are too small.

SCORES 100 STRAIGHT.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 9. The fourth annual shoot of the Westy Hogan Association brought out more than 200 entries of the best shots in the United States and Canada.

The chief event of the day was the Elmer Shaner trophy match at 100 targets. It was won by J. B. Graham of Chicago, with a score of 100 straight.

The Westy Hogan Association is composed of amateur and professional shots and a reunion is held yearly.

WRESTLERS TO CLASH.

FITCHBURG, Sept. 9.—Pilykoff, the Finish heavyweight athlete, has signed to wrestle Dufinar Lundin of Worcester here on September 16, best two out of three falls. Pilykoff has been training here for some time and his feats of strength have won for him a big following.

HARD LUCK AND ERRORS REASON OF SOX DEFEAT

By SID WHIPPLE.

Hard luck again. But the hard luck was tempered by a few errors, one of which by Mr. Engle on second base being responsible for the winning run. It was the ninth inning, with the score 2 to 2. Lord, Krause had singled to right, and Lord sacrificed. Then Oldring pounded a ball to one in Engle's direction that looked like a sure out. Clyde failed to realize that it was the psychological moment on third say in the books, and missed it. And Krause headed foolish, for Krause beat it for home and the run was scored.

The Red Sox had another life, that is for a brief moment, in the last of that same inning. Jake Stahl had struck out, Lewis pounded out a beautiful double to left field, Speaker got busy and fanned Wagner and Engle in the easiest way in the world, all there was to it. If anybody won that game it was Krause.

The Speed Boys had the game, all laced up until the seventh inning. They had scored two runs in the fifth, and even as they had the Athletics looked. For a while they were banging Krause pretty hard, Speaker and Lewis had just connected for a couple of two-baggers, when, singled with Stahl scoring. By the way, Gerald had netted the second run. Do you blame the fans for being willing to bet all their cash that Boston would hand out a defeat to Connie Mack's bunch? Answer: Certainly not!

Then the seventh and ninth innings had to go and spoil it all. Collins opened hard for their first tally. Two hits and a sacrifice brought Thomas home, which was bad and good. But with only a base on balls, a hit, and another hit which wasn't a hit, but was a hit, and wasn't a put-out (you follow this), scored a run in the seventh, that was fairly disgusting. But the ninth inning, referred to above, was still worse.

Thomas played a corking game behind the ball and with the old wallop. He went to bat twice, made two hits for a total of three, and did some fairly good work otherwise. But he was credited with an error. Livingston replaced him in the sixth and did his share toward the Athletics' win.

A funny thing happened in the fifth. Thomas had made a two-bagger, and through an injury had to be taken off the bases. Derrick ran for him. While the change was being made, time was called. Then there was a majority of the infielders, who gathered around Perrine, who was finally broken up, and the men went back to their positions. Then Lord flied out to Speaker. But say not so, brother Perrine had not called time again, and Lord had scored once. But Kid Gleason was equal to the occasion, and when Lord went out a second time in one inning he quickly fanned the air, the crowd took this opportunity to express their appreciation of the joke, and kidded Mr. Lord, the umpire, and everybody mixed up in the deal most strenuously.

SEEK SOX PLAYERS FOR NEW LEAGUE

Bill Carrigan and Tris Speaker have received letters from D. L. Fletcher, the Cincinnati man who is trying to arrange between the crack players of the two major leagues.

The National Commission has decided that the games cannot be played, but Fletcher is determined to go through with the scheme if he can get the players to stick. All of the players hold contracts which it is expected that Arnst will compel on his way back home. Greer figures that the inducements are too small.

NAPS PLAN TO PUT LIVE TEAM IN 1911 FIGHT

It begins to look as if Cleveland will be represented by a real live baseball team next season. Manager Lajoie is doing up his boys, right now they look better than at any time this season, and, what's more to the point, the same aggregation is bound to improve to team play before the the campaign closes.

The present outfield of the Naps is vastly superior to that which has been carrying the outer pastures all year. Jack Graney is a greatly improved player; Joe Birmingham is fielding and throwing as well as ever and is batting a little better, while Ted Easterly looks every inch an outfielder and has added considerable to a batting way.

Next season the indications are that the Cleveland outfield will be on a par with almost any. If Joe Jackson lives up to advance press notices and can hold down the centre pasture with Graney and Easterly on either side of him, Birmingham in reserve fans will probably have the pleasure of telling their friends in other A. L. cities about their 300 hitting outfield.

Jackson and Easterly are figured as certain residents of the select colony, while it would be wrong to say that Graney came to the front with a hefty mark. There isn't an American League manager who would take Graney off Cleveland's hands right now, but it would be a grievous mistake to part with him, as he looks like one of the coming stars of the game.

With Turner at third and Larry at second, the Naps could go along with a corking good fielding shortstop like Knaupp or Peckinaugh, even though he did not hit over .225, providing they secured a brilliant sacker who could connect for a mark in the neighborhood of .285. Turner is playing swell all-around ball and with an outfield batting around .300 and Larry batting in his old-time form, Manager McGuire could carry a pace-killing sleet fielder.

The biggest question that will confront Boss Jim is his pitching department, as it looks as if he will have the catching, Land and Adams are both delivering the goods in a commendable manner, with Gus Fisher and Sid Smith still to be heard from. Besides Jay Clarke will be back in harness in 1911. McGuire believes that he will have the pitching part season. Joss will probably be himself again and will have a running mates two other veterans, Cy Young and Cy Falkenberg.

Grim Kid Nichols is the best trainer of the young pitchers and he should prove a stunning acquisition to the local landing corps. Then there are Mitchell, Fanwell, Harkness, Kessler and Mott, any three of whom may come through with the right brand of goods to keep them in the American League.

TOMMY BURNS HOLDS NO TERROR FOR SAM

By ED. W. SMITH.

Tommy Burns, former world's champion, who made possible the supremacy athletically of the black race by giving Jack Johnson the only chance at the title a negro had had in years and years, does not share the general impression that Sam Langford is a terror at a man-killer.

Tommy is matched with Sam's over in London, Hugh McIntosh having agreed to wage the affair in December. It should be a hair raiser for the British populace if dragged off at popular prices, as Hugh D. now contemplates doing.

Long ago I pointed out to American promoters—that was before the Governor Gillett kill-it proclamation was issued—that to match up either Ketchel and Burns or Langford and Burns would be to get the greatest match or matches of the age, despite the fact that the Jeffries-Johnson thing was then the reigning topic.

Of course Ketchel is out of all question now, for he is nothing but a wreck, but Langford and Burns are in the full bloom of their ring powers and England will get the match and it should prove to be a wonder.

Calls Sam Short Distance Boxer.

Burns has written me a letter in which he agrees with my recent stand that Langford is strictly a short distance fighter. Tommy, it appears, has figured out the dope on Langford pretty closely and has come to the conclusion that the way to whip the negro is to avoid the early pace and stick it out for eight or ten rounds. Then hit 'er up with all force, if you've got the steam left, and Mr. Black will not come back.

"What surprises me is that nobody has figured this before out the way you did," Burns says. "Like most of them that rely upon a heavy wallop to end a fight he has got to get it in early or he is a goner.

"In every fight I ever had I showed that I was a patient waiter, being content to go along slowly and then finish fast. That would be my plan of battle with this fellow if ever we meet, as I know we shall."

Tommy tells me a lot of other things about himself that would hardly interest the public. Enough it is to say that Burns believes he will be to the best of shape years he meets Langford.

Burns Must be in Great Shape.

Personally I think Tommy will have to be in great shape to whip Sam back, no matter what line of dope the former Canadian has figured out to his own satisfaction. We are told by the Australian papers that Burns was not in anything like good condition when he faced Bill Lang in Australia a short time back, which fact, some of the critics hint, was all that permitted Lang to stick the twenty rounds and make a highly respectable showing with Burns.

When I saw Tommy in Reno in July he was as round as a barrel, his short stature being accentuated by the many pounds of flesh that he carried with him. It looked to me then, and was a matter of comment with others, but it would take months of the hardest sort of work to fit Burns for a hard ring contest. Burns had the flesh on him from his early days and looked anything but athletic.

This tendency to pick up weight quickly has long been a bugbear to Burns, but it never has been quite as marked as at the present time.

Curns Still Good Fighter.

Burns is only a young man, having reached his twenty-sixth birthday last June. He should be good for several years still, unless increasing lard and plenty of money ruin his athletic chances. The former does's you up hand and foot, while the latter says 'you're entitled to the best of athletic lards. Those who must get the money by wining usually make the best fighters. Those who don't have to fight usually are to complacent to bother much with the training grind and the rigors of the battle itself.

ALLOWS DRAFT OF SKEEL BY TIGERS

CINCINNATI, Sept. 9.—In a decision but handed down the National Baseball commission today allows the draft of pitcher David Skeel by the Detroit American League Club. The Western Canada League is held accountable to the player for salary from August 3 to 22. Skeel has been playing with the Western Canada League.

The commission also adopted an amendment in application of the rules, making it clear that in releasing players from major to the minor league clubs the former must provide the players released with transportation to their new destination, but that the minor league club must reimburse the makers for money so expended, the method being adopted merely to expedite matters.

POOL CHAMPION RETAINS TITLE

NEW YORK, Sept. 9.—Jerome Keogh of Rochester, N. Y., successfully defended his title of world's pool champion against Tom Hueston of St. Louis, challenger for the title in the 600-point match which was concluded at Doyle's billiard academy. The score for the final play was 395 to 173 in favor of Keogh, and the final score 600 to 501. When the men resumed playing Keogh was leading, 405 to 328, the result of a great rally Wednesday evening when Keogh began the second night's play 47 points behind Hueston.

Keogh was easily Hueston's master in the last part of the match and again displayed the brilliant playing he showed Wednesday night. The champion showed good judgment at choosing his combination shots and displayed great skill with the cue in pocketing the different shots.

LAWRENCE CLUB WILL BE SOLD

LAWRENCE, Sept. 9.—The Lawrence baseball club of the New England League is to be sold.

The directors of the association have been approached by the stockholders for a special meeting to dispose of their holdings. It is understood that several offers have been made for the team and franchise.

Manager Hamilton of the Lynn team, Manager Dowd of the New Bedford club and several Boston parties are mentioned as possible purchasers.

HORSE NOTES and SPEEDWAY

President George A. Condray of the Quonnapowitt Driving Club has sold his well known chestnut trotter, Crown Prince, 2:22¾, to parties in Providence.

* * *

The Metropolitan Driving Club in the coming Fall series of matinee races at the Charles River Speedway will limit the number of scores to three. There can be no question that this popular system has come to stay in racing upon a straight-away course, and the plan has the solid backing of the "Mets" racing committee. Quick and snappy races are assured by the three-score plan and delay at the starting wire avoided.

* * *

It is not always safe to rely too much in a name. The chestnut pacer Ty Cobb, by Semiveloe, was soundly trimmed this week in the 2:16 pace at Kalamazoo. This fellow carried a nice bundle of money, but simply failed to supercede the name he bore.

* * *

Bob Proctor of Readville was expected to take the Blue Grass pacer Dunny T. in hand, who won third money in the Futurity stake at New York. Bob must have missed him or for he is reported back at his stall in Kentucky.

* * *

The trotter Bruce Gedie, 2:08¾, well known to all Boston horsemen, starts her campaign next week at Indianapolis.

* * *

Superintendent Gilman of the Charles River Reservation has completed a handsome drive, 100 feet wide, around the circular snow ring at the Speedway. Ample room is thus afforded patrons of the annual "Met" horse shows who drive out for the occasion. Plans are well under way for the October horse show of the "Mets" and a number of galloway and hurdle races on the Speedway are to be an added feature.

* * *

George H. Esterbrook, the owner of Colorado E., 2:06¾, has done a grateful thing in sending a cheque for $750 to Mrs. Linda Evans, widow of the famous horseman, Will Evans, who owned a half interest in the present three-year-old champion when a yearling. Mr. Esterbrook, the first day he saw Colorado E., said he would some day be champion and he would remember Mrs. Evans with a gift. The popular Denver horseman has proved true to his word.

* * *

Denny Neyland has driven the trotting mare Tilly Cline, formerly owned by James E. Fitzgerald of the "Mets," in 2:19¾, at Readville.

* * *

There is every promise of a good meeting at Woonsocket next week. An immense amount of hard work has been put in to get the little city in northern Rhode Island upon the racing map again, and everything looks very favorable for an excellent week's racing.

* * *

None of the three-year-old pacers who started at Readville will be in the Kentucky Futurity. With Twinkling Dan too lame to start, it looks to be a very open event.

STRAIGHT TIPS FOR SPORT FANS

GOT THE LAUGH AGAIN ON OLD

Doctor Harris, the man who said he'd spend a million to make the Braves a team of ball players. Remember Harris said that Shean, the Cambridge Kid, was a better second baseman than Evers? See what Shean did in that game with the Giants Wednesday? Now, Dr. Harris, you'd better get busy and spend some of that coin you were talking about, or there won't be a nickel at the gate next year.

I WONDER WHAT WOULD HAPPEN if Ty Cobb had the use of two eyes, now that we know he bats with only one. He'd probably swat her for about .700 batting percentage points. It's a whole lot of relief to know that Cobb won't lose what slight he's got. The Georgia Peach is one of the makers of baseball. It's worth the price of admission to see him at work. And here's what Dr. Robert Gillmer of Detroit says about Cobb's eyes: "The trouble in a minor matter and Ty will play again Monday. His right eye is inflamed and the treatment required destroys team work between the eyes. If he were in an ordinary pursuit, he would be working to-day. There is no cause for worry over the possible loss of his eye sight or even the permanent impairing of his sight." Notice that Doc Gillmer is a fan big himself—pipe the learned discussion of "team work between the eyes." The medical men ought to make head lines out of that.

THE STEEPLECHASE HORSES OF A Henry Higginson of this city, master of the foxhounds of the Middlesex Hunt, have been shipped to the Blue Bonnet track at Montreal, and will be prominent in the cross-country events at the Canadian course, which begin on Saturday. Among the steeplechasers of Mr. Higginson are Sir Wooster, Prince Hampton, Ballacalla and Pincastle, and all should give a good account at Blue Bonnet. The closing of the racing season upon the New York running tracks has resulted in a great exodus of racing men to Montreal, and a splendid meeting is promised. The stables of James R. Keene, August Belmont and Richard T. Wilson, Jr., will race at Blue Bonnet and for the first time over the Dominion tracks.

Straight Tips—Some time ago I read in your column that Sam Langford offered to meet Jack and Mike Ryan Sullivan in the same ring one after the other. It seems to me it would be an interesting affair, for although neither Twin could hit hard enough to hurt Sam, they would have to throw fast to stay eight rounds each. The card would certainly draw a big house. Why not pull it? W.

No comment to make. Referred to the Twins and the promoters.

OUR OLD FRIEND WILLIAM F. KIRK, the father of Little Bobby, has doped the horses out as a fine bit of Rosefair. Here's how he slipped to them after the Giants had beaten them two straight:

The Bostonese, the Bostonese,
Each of them a piece of cheese,
Each of them a sorry wheeze,
Each of them a Doe-Cask freeze—

Don't know who you are, Eddie, but I'm sizing you up as being of the third primary class. Methinks I'm wrong. To be truthful your writing shows that you are some penman. But, meble, once again, your big brother wrote the letter for you.

Straight Tips—Please tell me through your column who has the best batting average, N. Cobb or Speaker?
A constant reader,
Lawrence. JOHN FLANAGAN.

Oh the jewel, John, that "constant reader" stuff gives me a pain. If you had left out that bull I might have given you the batting averages. If you had signed yourself "A Fan" it would have been just the touch needed to make the letter real funny.

Straight Tips—Will you state whether Jack Johnson fought Sam McVey three times; also when and where?
C.

Johnson fought McVey February 27, and October 7, 1905, at Los Angeles. He fought him April 22, 1904, at San Francisco. Johnson won all three scraps.

Straight Tips—(A) Is it an error if a fielder muffing a batted ball? (B) If a ball goes through the fielder's legs is that an error or a hit?
Carmont, N. H. A CONSTANT READER.

(A) Usually no. (B) It's a matter of the scorer's judgment.

MATTY BALDWIN MATCHED.

Grover Hayes and Matty Baldwin are reported matched for New Orleans. Hayes is the boy that gave Baldwin a fine trouncing at the Armory A. A. when they met there, and also gave Brannon his hands full a short time ago at New Orleans.

ST. LOUIS CLUB NOT ON MARKET

CINCINNATI, Sept. 9.—"If the St. Louis American League baseball team is to be sold I know nothing of it, and I think I ought to know were such a plan under consideration. No one has approached me regarding the affair, and you can say that the franchise is not for sale."

Thus John E. Bruce, one of the principal stockholders in the St. Louis team, secretary of the National Baseball Commission, disposed to-day of a story that the St. Louis Browns are for sale and that President Hedges is wearied of the game and wants to retire.

When Mr. Bruce was told that Jefferson Livingston of this city said that a proposition was made to him to take over the Browns Mr. Bruce repeated his denial.

Jealousy Is a Weed in the Garden of the Mind

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

Copyright, 1910, by American-Journal-Examiner

WHEN we come to analyze the troubles of humanity we find but two causes—selfishness and jealousy.

Of course, the former includes the latter, so we might say there is but one cause of the world's miseries. Yet this second phase of the primal evil is so prominent in all the different places where trouble exists that every laborer in the vineyard of God ought to go forth, hoe in hand, to exterminate the noxious weed from the earth.

The children born of one mother and father become discordant in the home circle through jealousy. One sister receives more attention than the other, is more popular socially, or a greater favorite with her schoolmates and teachers. One brother succeeds better in business or in love or in politics, and lo! blood is changed to gall and love to hate.

Neighbors become enemies because one woman seems to surpass or even to equal another who had deemed herself preeminent in her circle, or owing to the fact that one man builds a larger house than another and drives a finer pair of horses.

In the kitchen war is declared when the waitress is complimented by her employer for good service; the cook wishes to be the only favorite of the mistress, and after making life insupportable for the household departs in high dudgeon or compels her subordinate to leave.

Disaster Wrought by Jealousy

Friendships are destroyed, homes ruined, society turned into chaos, churches undermined, communities disturbed and nations driven to war through jealousy. We look but to look about us to see the disaster wrought by it, the happiness destroyed, the hearts blighted, the lives dwarfed.

Trace almost any trouble to its source, save that of the death of dear ones, and you are sure to find petty, mean jealousy pumping into the stream as a generous tributary.

When we are conscious of any unlovely or disturbing element in human nature the first and most practical method of eradicating it is to begin with ourselves. It will not be an easy task to confess to ourselves that you are jealous, that your dislike of some person is traceable to that cause or that your readiness to criticise is due to it.

No; it will be far easier and more agreeable to convince yourself that your dislikes are "intuitions," and that you are peculiarly analytical and discriminating, and therefore critical.

That you have the correct "artistic eye is why you so seldom see beauty in people, and that you have peculiarly high ideals is why you are so prone to find fault with the behavior of your acquaintances.

All this is pleasant for you to believe, but it renders you most unpleasant and is making your heart a neglected garden whose weeds run riot.

Are you unhappy in any of your domestic or social relations? If so, analyze yourself—find out how much a secret, lurking jealousy of others has to do with it.

Are you in some one's employ—a cook, a maid, a man servant, a clerk, a saleswoman, an office boy—and in trouble with your associates? Stop and ask if the fault does not lie with yourself before you go any further. Are you not making your own unhappiness by harboring a mean, unworthy spirit of jealousy?

Are you at odds with your neighbors, your business associates or your political comrades? Find out what is wrong with your own mind before you lay the blame on others.

Seek the Faults in Yourself

Are you unable to enjoy the company of moral people and flattering yourself with the idea that you are exclusive and peculiarly refined, and that you must therefore be always a lonely soul? Look to it that you are not instead a jealous creature, resentful of the popularity of others.

Do not deceive yourself as you wander through the garden of your mind, but when you find that ugly weed jealousy uproot it. If you find it in others uproot it there. Begin by resisting what it is, then by asserting its antidote—universal love.

Do not make the mistake of denying it. Expend your mental forces in the most effectual method of declaring the love principle until your heart and mind are imbued with love, charity good will and breadth of feeling.

In quiet moments say to yourself there is room in God's world for all His children, and that no one can crowd another by more than one star can crowd another in the firmament. Compel yourself to praise the good qualities of those who have aroused your jealousy. Seek to do them a favor.

These are all steps toward self-conquest. But this self-conquest cannot take place if you coddle your jealous feelings, really liking them other names and convince yourself that it is your "love of justice" and your "sensitiveness" and your "discriminative" which produce your unhappy emotions and your disapproval of so many people.

Trust your heart as you do your flower garden. When you find a weed, say: "This is a weed," then uproot it and plant a flower in its place.

Do not say: "This is a lovely vine," and train it about the trellis of your mind until the whole world shuns you because you have cultivated poison ivy.

Uproot the weed of Jealousy and plant a flower in its place.

Which?---Matrimony or Twenty-five Years in the Army?

By DOROTHY DIX

WHICH would you rather do—get married, or serve twenty-five years in the army? Would you rather walk the mile or walk the sentry path for that length of time?

This is the decision that will be up to young Frenchmen if the bill which has been drafted by Dr. Lanselongne, and has there been so interesting a conundrum submitted to us as this bill that gives a man a choice between twenty-five years' service in the army or a life term at matrimony.

One can imagine the man who is approaching his twenty-ninth birthday, sitting down to argue out the question.

"Alas!" he says to himself, "I can no longer dilly-dally with love and marriage; the time has come when I must either wed a bride to the altar, or myself be led away by the recruiting sergeant. Which shall it be?

"The military career has no attractions for me. I am a quiet and peace-loving man, but neither has domesticity for me. I have no charms, for I am one who loves his freedom. I am aware that the life of the soldier in times of peace is a dull and monotonous one, and the idea of spending the next twenty-five years in going over and over again, day after day, and month after month, and year after year, the same deadly routine is enough to drive me to suicide.

No Personal Liberty

"But if I pass up the soldier's life and espouse matrimony, what do I gain? Is not matrimony also deadly monotonous? Is it not also a treadmill wherein one goes round and round, seeing forever the same face across the breakfast table, hearing the same complaints, watching for the same squint in the eye, fed on the same boiled mutton and potatoes, everything the same yesterday, to-day and to-morrow?

"The chief horror of military service is that it will deprive me of my personal liberty. I can no longer go and come as I please after I am drafted into the army. There will be no more little larks for me. No more staying out at night, no more wandering around at my own sweet will. I must arise at a certain hour, and eat at a certain hour, and go to bed at a certain hour. I must keep within bounds.

The Commanding Officer

"It irks my very soul to think of this, but will I escape this bondage by marriage? I trow not. I observe that my married friends do not dare to stay down town of nights without first hastening to a telephone booth, and making elaborate and mendacious excuses for their absence from the domestic hearthstones. I also observe that when these men do linger for a dinner, and, perhaps, a little game with some of their old friends, that they appear next morning with a meek and chastened air, as of those who have been severely dealt with and disciplined.

"I likewise notice that after a man is married he eats the kind of food that agrees with his wife, he entertains her friends and not his own in his home, he goes into the society which she prefers and not the kind that he would choose; he even wears the kind of clothes that she picks out, and so I argue from this that there is no man who is less a free agent than the married man, and that there is mighty little choice between being confined in barracks and being confined in the home.

"If I become a soldier I shall have my superior officer who can order me about at pleasure, whose commands I must take and whom I cannot strike, no matter with what contumely and insult he uses me.

"But when a man marries does he not get a commanding officer in his wife, and one that he dare not strike, no matter how much he would like to upon occasion? Yea, verily. The wife in most families not only issues the orders, but she is a martinet that enforces discipline with the flat of tongue in a way that makes the poor, humble private of a husband jump to obey.

"Of course, if I become a soldier I may have the chance of doing some grand and heroic deed, but if I become a husband shall I not also run the chance of having heroism almost thrust upon me? What is the courage that leads a forlorn hope, or risks a life to rescue a comrade, or to save the flag compared to that which endures a lifetime of the nagging and fault-finding of a silly and fault-finding wife? All of us know that when the real hero medals are dealt out they should not go to some glittering creature in gold lace and bedizened uniform, but to the quiet, humpshouldered man who has endured thirty or forty years of matrimonial purgatory.

"Again, if I become a soldier there is always the possibility of glory and fame, but if I marry there is also the hundred-to-one shot that I may get as a wife the capital prize in the matrimonial lottery and be happy ever after. If I become a soldier there is a time limit to my service—matrimony has none, barring death or divorce, upon neither of which am I cad enough to speculate.

"So the advantages and disadvantages of compulsory service in the army and compulsory matrimony balance each other and leave me wondering which shall I choose—twenty-five years in the army or to be a home guard forever.

"Which shall I choose? Which would you choose?"

In the army he would have a martinet of an officer over him.

And in matrimony he would have a martinet of a wife over him.

countersigned by a score of eminent Frenchmen, to be passed. The bill, which has already been introduced into the Senate, provides that every man who is unmarried at the age of twenty-nine will be called upon to fulfil a series of extra periods of military service until he has been for twenty-five years in active service.

This is the heroic way in which it is proposed to fight race suicide in France and combat what is called "the gradual death of the French nation." The gay bachelor will no longer going to be permitted to flit from bud to bud. He is going to be conscripted, as it were, into matrimony.

Of course, in this country where we still retain the marrying habit, and where the baby crop is always a bumper crop, no such drastic measures are necessary to drive men into the holy estate. However, it is one thing to marry, because you are under the illusion that matrimony is a return to the Garden of Eden, it is quite another pair of sleeves to be called upon to choose marriage as the lesser of two evils, and not since Stockton propounded the riddle of "The Lady or the Tiger?"

Something Always Happens

Clerk No. 1, on June 15, took his vacation time. The flowers and trees were blooming, and all nature seemed sublime.

Bill Simpkins smiled sarcastically, and cried, "I'll wait until

A later date to go away. The Fall's the time," said Bill.

July 15, Clerk No. 2 took his vacation treat. "You're foolish," said Bill Simpkins; "you'll come back in all the heat.

I'll wait till Summer's over, and while you feel weak and ill

I'll be up in the mountains. The Fall's the time," said Bill.

Clerk No. 3, in August, to his fellows said "Good-by." And for a fortnight's pleasure took it quickly on the fly. "Poor fellow," said Bill Simpkins, "August's hot enough to kill.

For me nice, cool September. The Fall's the time," said Bill.

Ah me! 'Tis hard to tell it, but when Bill packed up to go,

The Boss said, "Bill, I'm sorry, but the times are hard, you know.

When Women Have the Ballot

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

WHEN women vote—and the day is not far off—I would like to make a few changes.

I would like every railway company to issue a woman's edition of their timetables, so that a woman could make head or tail of them, which she can't do as they are now.

I would like the steps on open street cars lower, so that a woman would not slip on her skirt or stumble on her knees every time she gets on a car.

I would like every other strap on subway and elevated cars to hang low so that a woman could reach it without pulling every garment on her, from shoes to hat, out of place.

As things are now, all public conveniences are built to suit men.

To be sure, the seats on one side of some lines of ferries are reserved for women and "must not be occupied by men to the exclusion of women, but that is a farce, too ridiculous to mention.

This Isn't Asking Too Much

Women do not expect the men to offer their seats in subway or elevated cars, but it is not asking much to expect to occupy the seats that are specially reserved for them.

I love to hear men talk about what woman will do when she has a vote. Oh, she is going to be a very dreadful person, I can assure you, according to the masculine point of view. She is going to lose all her femininity; there will be no more comfort in the homes; the babies will be neglected—if there are any. She's just going to make a muddle of the entire social system.

To hear them talk, one would think that woman was going to camp out at the polls the entire year around.

Woman's sphere, according to man, is limited to the nursery and kitchen.

A Typical Man Reason

Fortunately woman has learned to think for herself and not to rely blindly on man's opinions.

She knows that, in many ways, she is man's superior—in a great many his equal.

She does not want to usurp man's rights, but merely to be allowed a few of her own.

"Why don't you want women to vote?" I asked a man friend.

"Because she'll make a mess of everything; she doesn't know what she wants; she does not understand politics; let her stick to her own sphere."

But why not give her a chance; she is capable of learning.

I suppose man thinks that any one who is afraid of a mouse is not capable of intelligent voting; but let him bear in mind how much more heroically she bears pain than he does, and perhaps that will balance things.

If a woman is capable of earning her own living, and nine out of ten do so, she ought to have the privilege of voting.

The woman who runs her husband's household, taking care of the children and managing economically, earns her living just as surely as the woman who is paid a fixed salary every week for bookkeeping, etc.

Some people have the idea that woman will vote just as the men of her family do; that she will have no convictions of her own.

This is a great mistake; she will know just how she wants to vote, and, what's more, she won't sell her vote—it will be too precious a possession.

Will Be More Womanly

And as for her becoming less feminine, she will be ten times a better and more womanly woman, when she really has her rights, than when she is obliged to fight for them.

As it is principally for the children's sakes that she is fighting, there is no fear that the babies will ever be neglected; for the maternal sense is the strongest thing in woman, and always will be—vote or no vote.

Fashion Notes from Paris

The waist line is rising again.

All the old laces are in great vogue.

Jumper house styles are increasing in favor.

The touch of black is still a feature of fashion.

Dark blue and black are the favorite costumes colors for coat suits.

Waists of black chiffon, marquisettes and voiles are pronounced.

New toques and turbans generally have sharply upturned brims.

The mushroom shape returns very strongly in Fall millinery styles.

In the new coat suits the coats range in length from thirty-six to forty inches.

Lace, chiffon and marquisette are extremely fashionable for dressy Fall costumes.

Fall tailor models very strongly reflect the "bubble" skirt idea of Paris.

Two toned plumes and enormous pink poppies trim some of the latest hats.

The narrow silhouette is being adhered to with every prospect of its continuation.

A handsome costume of soft blue chiffon is embroidered with a conventional design in white crystal beads.

For early Fall wear middle-aged women are going to use the black chantilly coat lined with chiffon and silk.

Among the most striking trimmings for Fall gowns are embroideries done in very heavy silks and the metallic threads. Some are enriched by jewels.

The new waists to be worn with tailored suits as well as the waists of costumes will be of chiffon or marquisette in dark tones which match the suit.

Types of the narrow skirt now the vogue in Paris are seen on this side of the Atlantic, but the most pronounced effects are seen oftener in suits than in dresses.

Broad-brimmed coarse straw sailors trimmed in scarfs of course linen embroidered in black, white, gold or color are much in evidence at the French Summer resorts.

Early showings of fabrics for suits are mostly tweed and serge, in mixed colorings. Velvets will be extremely fashionable for Winter wear, in dark colors with a fine stripe of another hue.

Scarfs grow in favor. For day wear with tailor costumes the supple satin scarf is worn. For afternoon dress the scarf of mousseline de soie or voile. For receptions the large empire scarf makes a pretty accompaniment, and for evening wear luminous scarfs of bright tones contrasting with the costumes are worn.

A Few Tasty Desserts

BLACKBERRY SHERBET.

The blackberry season is now at its height and blackberry sherbet is one of the few delightful desserts possible from these berries. Strain the juice from a quart of preserved or stewed blackberries. Dilute with half as much water, add sugar to taste and freeze to a soft mush. Then add the beaten whites of two eggs and freeze hard. It is a beautifully colored ice.

ICED COFFEE.

To four cups of clear, strong coffee add two cups of scalded milk and one-half cup sugar. Mix well, cool and place on ice near the ice. To serve, pour over shaved ice in glasses.

WATERMELON PUNCH.

Materials: Two quarts watermelon, sugar to taste, and one-half of a cup of sherry. Chop the watermelon coarsely, then add sugar as desired. Let stand one hour, then add the sherry and freeze to the mushy stage. Make a bowl, using one-half of the watermelon rind. With a fancy cutter scallop it around the edge. Chill this bowl. When ready to serve fill the bowl with the frozen mixture and serve at the table in punch cups.

RHUBARB MARMALADE.

Slice two quarts rhubarb, sprinkle over it three pints of sugar, let stand over night; add juice of two oranges, grated rind of one, one cupful of chopped raisins; boil until thick, pour into tumblers.

FRUIT CONSERVE.

Two boxes red raspberries, boil and strain; two oranges, peel and all, chopped fine; one-quarter pound blanched almonds, chopped; one cup seeded raisins, chopped; one cup sugar to one cup of pulp. Boil fifteen minutes. Put in jelly glasses. Serve with meat.

FOUR AND FOUR.

Four lemons, four bananas, four oranges, four cupfuls of sugar, four cupfuls of water, everripe bananas, mashed, juice of oranges and lemons, all frozen together as frappe.

Smart Set Out in Force for Cohasset Horse Show

By ELIZABETH ELLIOTT.

ALL roads lead to-day to the Henry M. Whitney estate at Cohasset, where the third annual Horse Show is being held for the benefit of that most appealing charity, the Bonnie Bairns Hospital for sick babies at Cohasset. The show, which continues through to-morrow, is to be even more successful than its predecessors, as the entries are more numerous and general interest wider.

Silver cups for the blue ribbon equine winners at Cohasset have been presented by the Horse Show Committee, Henry M. Whitney, Edward B. Bayley, Cleveland Bigelow, Richard P. Bolles, Howard Chapell, Courtenay Crocker, William D. Mandell, George G. Crocker, Francis H. Manning, Charles E. Mason, Mrs. Arthur N. Milliken and Ralph B. Williams.

The horse show officers are: Committee, Cleveland Bigelow, Howard Chapnell, Lyneham Crocker, William D. Mandell, Charles E. Mason, Arthur Williams, Jr., Ralph B. Williams; judges, Arthur W. Stedman, Francis Peabody, Jr., F. Lothrop Ames; judges of racing, Dr. A. H. Fitch, A. W. Wells; starter, F. T. Foss; treasurer of Bonnie Bairns, James Dean; veterinarians, Dr. D. W. Gilbert and Dr. A. H. Fitch; manager, B. S. Burns; ring master, M. F. Spear.

The entries this year total 250 horses, about 100 more than were made last season. Nearly all the South Shore cottagers have entries, and there are many also from the North Shore.

Among the largest exhibitors will be Samuel S. Spaulding, Mr. and Mrs. Larz Anderson, G. Sumner Draper, whose horses figured in the Newport show, Thomas Plant and Thomas W. Lawson. (There is no four-in-hand class this season, but Mr. Lawson has promised to make an exhibition of his new coach, driving twice around the half-mile track in four minutes. There will also be a special pony race in addition to trotting and pacing events. The tandem saddle class is a novelty this year, and will no doubt be one of the leading features with its half a dozen entries. There are twenty-two classes, which gives an average of eleven horses in each class. There will be ten haunt ribbons, and in all of the classes the winner will receive a cup in addition to the blue.

Order of Program.

The horses to-day will be called in the following classes and the order of the day will be:

I'LL NEVER MARRY YOU I HATE YOU I DETEST A COWARD!
YES, CLAUDE, REMAIN PERFECTLY CALM, FOR THE SLIGHTEST MOVEMENT MAY SNAP THE CHAINS
THIS IS A WONDERFUL SENSATION—TO BE 500 FEET IN THE AIR AND IN CONSTANT DANGER

But rather than marry such a cur, she'd die a thousand deaths.

IT'S DESMOND'S WORK!
MY ROSAMOND!
I'LL WALK AWAY QUIETLY AND NOBODY THEN WILL SUSPECT ME OF THE CRIME REVENGE! HA, HA, HA!
CERTIFIED

But, as our fair heroine dashes toward a hideous death on the pavement below, Claude hears her cry, and stretches out his mighty arm to save her.

And Desmond, satisfied with his cruel work, little recks that he is directly in the path of the falling girder. Will it hit him? Wait and see. It's all in the next pictures.

CHAPTER XXII.—(Continued)

"WHEN is Doyle going to step into the bank and proceed to settle the old score between you?" he asked himself. He knew that, as long as Doyle lived, the latter would be seeking his trail and that some day the sleuthhound of the law would find it.

Jimmy knew also that every year that he added to his new life of honesty would be a big asset in overcoming his enemy when the time came for the "showdown." His was the work of a reputation-maker. It was not sufficient that his character was formed for good and even noble purposes, at last, but he must have also something to show in definite form.

He must attain that position in life where his deeds would speak for him. His associates must be in a position to step to his defence and declare for him in the face of disgrace, saying: "This is a clean and an honest man. We have known him these years by his own work. He may have been anything in earlier days, but since we have worked with him he has lived as every decent man should live."

In three years, Jimmy told himself, he would accomplish this. He was young and Rose was young. They must wait. He hinted this to Rose, as broadly as he might, without frankly declaring his love and desire for her. She understood and, womanlike, was unhappy at first and then happy again, as she saw the wisdom of her lover's course.

Jimmy was made the assistant cashier of the bank at the end of the first year. His income more than supplied his needs, and he saved his money, investing cautiously as his little bank account increased from month to month.

It was time for him to lend a helping hand to Red Jocelyn. The one-time "yegg" had stuck faithfully to the straight path for a year, and was beginning to feel the peace and comfort of life as a law-abiding citizen. He had passed the half-century mark and was beginning to feel his years.

After a careful study of the matter, Jimmy made a frank statement of it to Mr. Lane. Red was taken into the bank as a day watchman. Uniformed in the gray suit of a special officer, and with his badge glittering on the street, Red Jocelyn found himself anomalously guarding the money of other people instead of trying to steal it.

Red was useful in other ways. He kept his eye on the New York papers, always watching for a word of Doyle; always hoping that some fine morning he would see that name in the ordinary column, or in an announcement that he had been retired from active service.

Red was on duty at the door one day when a stranger walked in and inquired where he should go to open an account.

"My name is Cronin," said the stranger, studying Red's face closely.

"You want to see the assistant cashier, Mr. Cronin," replied Red, a feeling of uneasiness coming over him.

The stranger was heavy of build, wore a frock coat and gray striped trousers, a silk hat and a clamorous waistcoat.

Red went to Jimmy's office and announced that Mr. Cronin wanted to open an account. He was told to usher in the new patron.

Mr. Cronin, rubbing his silk hat softly, entered.

"Why, how do you do, Bill?" Red heard the assistant cashier say in greeting.

"Why, it's Jimmy!" exclaimed Cronin.

Red looked at him closely and recognized Bill Avery.

"Hello, Bill," he cried with a deep sigh of relief. "You have changed so that I didn't recognize you. What's the make-up for?"

"The make-up?" repeated Bill, "The honest and the fine rags," explained Red.

The Lavender

THE lavender bush is green and grey,
Oh, the lavendar bush is sweet,
With a tangle of purple bloom over the way,
That I go my love to meet.
The lavender bush by a seat of stone
Sweeps softest shade to-day,
And it's there that I'll find you, my love, my own,
Where the lavender's green and grey.

The bee-folk pass in their troops of gold
By the lavender bush day long,
And the butterflies come from the thyme wold,
And the robin with his song.
And I hear your voice, O my heart, my sweet,
And I see your smile to-day,
In the fragrant gloom of the old stone seat
Where the lavender's green and grey.

The lavender's silver and mauve at night
When that will o' the wisp, the moon,
Swings out o'er a world that's all misty light
To the sound of the wind's soft croon;
And the lavender gifts as to sigh for you,
And oh, how my heart would pray,
Come back, love of mine, 'twixt the dusk and the dew,
While the lavender's green and grey.

CLEANING PANS

IT ruins a pot or enamel pan to scrape it.

Instead put a tablespoon of washing soda in the pan and a quart of water. Put on back of range to heat. Shake gently once in a while and in a couple of hours the burnt crust will rise and the pan will be clean and good as new.

INDIGESTION, DYSPEPSIA, SOURNESS, GAS AND STOMACH-HEADACHE GO.

If what you just ate is souring on your stomach or lies like a lump of lead, refusing to digest, or you belch Gas and eructate sour, undigested food or have a feeling of Dizziness, Heartburn, Fullness, Nausea, Bad taste in mouth and stomach headache—this is Indigestion.

A full case of Pape's Diapepsin costs only 50 cents and will thoroughly cure your out-of-order stomach, and leave sufficient about the house in case some one else in the family may suffer from stomach trouble or Indigestion.

Ask your pharmacist to show you the formula plainly printed on these 50-cent cases, then you will understand why Dyspeptic trouble of all kinds must go, and why they usually relieve sour, out-of-order stomachs or Indigestion in five minutes. Diapepsin is harmless and tastes like candy. Each large case contains power sufficient to digest and prepare for assimilation into the blood all the food you eat; besides, it makes you go to the table with a healthy appetite; but, what will please you most is that you will feel that your stomach and intestines are clean and fresh and you will not need to resort to laxatives or liver pills for Biliousness or Constipation.

This city will have many Diapepsin cranks, as some people will call them, but you will be cranky about this splendid stomach preparation, too, if you ever try a little for Indigestion or Gastritis or any other Stomach misery.

Get some now, this minute, and forever rid yourself of Stomach Trouble and Indigestion.

11 Year-Old Ghetto Girl Brilliant Play Writer

BERTHA Dunn, a little East Side, New York girl, not yet in her teens, and the daughter of a Russian emigrant, of but a few years' residence in America, has been selected for one of the speaking parts in "The Blue Bird," to be produced shortly at the New Theatre.

Out of over fifty applicants, nearly all of whom had been reared amid comfortable and luxurious surroundings, and had had the advantage of both public school and private training, this child of the Ghetto was chosen solely for her rare dramatic sense and talent.

Bertha was born in the Province of Volhinki, Russia, in 1899. Her father was a peasant with a love for music, and her uncle was a country doctor. When her mother died and her father took another wife, she took care of herself pretty much and played little mother to her younger brother.

Mrs. Marion P. D. Barton, of the division of child hygiene of the Health Department, during her work among immigrant children, recognized her ability and brought her to the attention of Director Winthrop Ames.

Writes Several Plays.

Her pretty stories become a part of her life, and instead of becoming serious-minded and practical, she became fanciful and beautiful. Frequently she would write a short play, and after instructing her little chums in the parts they were to assume, she would take the principal part and produce it for her instructor and benefactor, Mrs. Allston.

When seen by a reporter little Bertha was full of happiness.

"I love acting and I hope some day to make a success of it," she said. "I love everything that is beautiful in life—pictures, music, dancing, but best of all dancing and acting."

"Do you like acting better than going to school?" she was asked.

"Oh, no!" she exclaimed. "I like to go to school. I want to learn. You know I must gain a education or I cannot ever be a great actress. If you haven't got an education you can't act," she added naively.

Jumping up, she exclaimed:

"Shall I recite for you?"

The reporter answered that he would be glad to hear her, whereupon she gave a clever recital of a little story entitled "Josephine," and then ran off to return immediately with the manuscript of a play she had written.

"The Two Sisters."

"This is all mine," she said proudly, "except I had to ask Mrs. Barton how to spell chloroform." The play is called "The Two Stepsisters," and is as follows:

People—Cross Sister, Etta age twelve; Gentle Sister, Ruth, age eleven.

Place—On the Porch.

Time—Last Fall.

The Two Step-Sisters.

Must be a chair, flower pots, ferns and Morning Glory climbing up strings. Sister sitting on the chair thinking, talking to herself.

Etta—Oh! I hate in ysister! If I could only get rid of her I'd be glad. I'll try some plan.

* * *

(Enter Ruth.)

Ruth—Look, sister; see what Ralph gave me (staring at her ring).

(Etta's eyes grew bigger.)

Etta—Give me that. I want it! * * *

Ruth—Oh! sister! don't be so rude. You did not receive it. I did. * * *

Etta—You shall pay for this, you scoundrel. Leave this porch at once. Out with you!

(Ruth leaves the porch sadly.)

(Etta thinks of a plan.)

Etta—I have an idea! I shall chloroform her! I shall call her in and ask her to see the beautiful clouds. Sister Ruth!

(Ruth enters frightenedly.)

Ruth—Did you call me?

Etta—Yes, I want you to see the beautiful clouds. Aren't they gorgeous?

Ruth—Yes, how beautiful they are!

Plot to Get Ring.

(While she looks Etta takes a bottle of chloroform out of her pocket and pours her handkerchief full of it. She covers Ruth's face with the handkerchief and because she is in a hurry she loses her own scarf on the porch. She takes Ruth's ring. Comes midnight. Ruth awakens. She finds her sister's scarf on the porch and is much surprised to find herself on the porch alone. She starts a soliloquy, talks, loudly, out on the street. She prays to God.)

Now I'll lay me down to sleep,
I pray the Lord my soul to keep.
If I should die before I wake,
I pray the Lord my soul to take.
Amen.

God please send some one to help me. Amen.

She arises from her knees. Walks on dreary and tired. Suddenly she sees a woman (who is Etta disguised as a lady).

Etta—Dear child! Do you have to stay out here in the cold?

Ruth (not paying attention)—Will you please give me a penny?

(The woman hands her ten cents.)

(Ruth is very thankful. Suddenly the woman recognizes her sister, feels very sorry, takes off her disguised clothes and falls on her knees, with tears in her eyes. For the first time the wicked Etta has some pity in her heart.)

Etta—Sister, will you please forgive me? I know I have been cross, but I shall be kind to you always. If you please, forgive me.

Ruth (very much surprised—I shall never forgive you unless you return the ring!

Etta—Yes, here's your ring! I give it to you with all my heart! * * *

(Ruth is very happy when the ring is placed on her finger again.)

Both—Sister, now we shall go home and live very happy and forget our quarrels. * * *

An Actress's Trick

MME. SARAH BERNHARDT, who is supposed to be something of an artist as well as an actress, was recently called upon in one of her marvellous creations to outact the rule of a sculptor and to model a certain bust in view of the audience.

This fairly electrified the critics, but when going into rhapsodies over the technical skill in handling the clay which Mme. Bernhardt exhibited they showed that they knew little of the artistic tricks of actors and actresses; as a matter of fact, she does nothing of the kind. The bust is modelled and baked, and over it is placed damp clay of the same color. This the actress removes, leaving the beautifully modelled head underneath.—Strand.

LUDLOW STATE STRIKE REPORT STIRS LABOR

SPRINGFIELD, Sept. 9.—Labor men of this city and vicinity are much incensed over statements made in a long article on the Ludlow strike, which has just appeared in the form of advance proof sheets. The review is to appear later in the annual report of the State Bureau of Statistics.

Local labor leaders say the general tone of the article is unfair to the employes of the Ludlow mills who went on strike. The intimation is made in the report, it is claimed, that the strikers were responsible for acts of violence, like stone throwing and setting of fires.

Charges Never Proven.

These acts were never proved to have been committed by strikers. The labor men further charge the article states exactly the position of the Ludlow manufacturing associates in detail, but neglects to give the viewpoint of the strikers.

The report attempts to clear up the misunderstanding that has existed regarding just where the blame was to be placed for the breaking out of the strike after it had been apparently settled by the State Board of Arbitration. The report attaches the blame to the interpreters, who are accused of having served to distort the decisions of the board. The former strikers, however, refuse to blame their interpreters and are by no means satisfied with the attack made in the report.

Employes Grieved.

While it is not likely that the Ludlow employes will openly protest the report, they express a good deal of feeling in discussing the matter. However, they are unwilling to reopen old sores, as the work at the Ludlow mills has progressed smoothly since the strike and there has not been the slightest friction between their employers and the workingmen.

The old weavers' union has been disbanded and a new textile workers' union formed to include 1,800 out of 2,500 employe.

FRUIT MEN DODGE HIGH RAIL RATES

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Sept. 9.—Local merchants will ship citrus fruits to New York by way of Panama when Rates Advance.

Chesebrough got their new steamship line established as a solution of the question of any proposed increase in freight rates on citrus fruits by railroads. The service will not be opened, however, until from Los Angeles to New York. The line figures on thirteen days to New York and six days from the Isthmus to New York. This would leave two days for loading at Balboa, shipping across the Isthmus and reloading at Colon. The railroad time to New York is fourteen days. It is proposed to carry a portion of a shipment in the hold of a vessel, part on deck and part under refrigeration.

TO USE LIQUID SUGAR IN CANDY

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—Liquid sugar may enter into the production of cheaper qualities of candies because of the increasing cost of the crystalized article. Owing to exporting sugary cakes of ice, according to the Department of Commerce and Labor, Hereford, Tex., had been found impracticable to ship it in barrels. Tank ships are now used, and England offers a ready market. Liquid sugar retains much juice, lime, glucose and gums not found in the ordinary white sugar used for domestic purposes. It also makes admirable sweetening.

TODAY'S STOCK MARKETS; FINANCIAL NEWS

STOCK MARKET TAKES SLUMP

NEW YORK, Sept. 9.—Dullness and irregularity marked the trading on the stock exchange when the market opened today. The list was featureless and price fluctuations were almost insignificant. Several of the more important issues recorded no changes in quotations in the initial transactions and the largest decline amounted to only ¼ point. This was in Reading.

Leather caused an opening rally in that issue to 22⅝, a gain of 3/8 point. American Smelters was off ¼ point, Baltimore & Ohio was off ⅛, and Southern Pacific was up the same fraction. The curb market was moderately active and steady. In London American stocks were irregular with only small price changes.

STATE ST. NEWS FOR INVESTORS

Prices are now at such a level that there is no question of the standard issues being safe investments, provided the purchaser is willing to stand by his investments through a period of dull business and almost certain lower prices.

$ $ $

What has been the case since the year opened promises to be true of the remaining four months of 1910. Lower prices may be seen for the entire list, but the outlook is not one to afford much satisfaction to those on the bear side of the market.

$ $ $

The conflict of opinion in information circles is causing considerable embarrassment to those who would like to do something in the market, but are unable to determine just what step is the proper one to take. There are plenty of tips in circulation, but it is noticed that the stocks most generously touted are the very ones against which the most suspicion is directed.

$ $ $

It is not to be forgotten, though, that it is not when the sky is brightest the dominant men in the Street do the lower of their buying. They take on securities when the world wants to sell and are letting them go. The fact that there is no liquidation at present indicates that investors are not at all alarmed, but it is coupled with the knowledge that people who have securities to put up think cash for what the market has to offer.

$ $ $

The remination that the more important financial quarters no alarm is felt at the prospect of democratic victories is somewhat encouraging. A readjustment of political conditions is regarded as desirable by many financiers, as a shifting of power might remove some of the odium attaching to the Street as a whole.

$ $ $

The market is full of all sorts of bobtail posts now, some of which are doing very well, while others are fast going on the rocks. It is only where the insiders are interested. As in the case of the American Hide & Leather preferred stock scandal, that profits are assured. There is no important public following in any of the combinations, however, and it is a lucky time for the outsiders that this is so. It is easy to get into these stocks, but exceedingly hard to get out of them without suffering loss.

$ $ $

Any buying at this time is a matter of interest as indicative of the attitude of those who control the destinies of the market. When they are taken on quarter days are apt to sag, but when they take the aggressive the level is raised.

$ $ $

State street considers the chances good for the railroads to get an increase on freight rates. The railroads and the shippers' views are only two parties to the agreement. They are acting as though nobody else had anything to say. The great public is interested more than either of them, and inquiry made by bankers shows that there is a public sentiment in favor of an increase, this sentiment being emphatic on the part of organized labor and owners of securities.

$ $ $

Some of the bears go upon the theory that although the last quarterly dividend on American Smelting was declared by the directors all right there will be a reduction in the rate of payment next time. They say they know nothing about the operations of the company, owing to the secretiveness of the officials, but believe business is not as good as has been represented by the insiders.

$ $ $

All the reports coming from the floor of the Stock Exchange continue to show good buying of Southern Pacific. It is quietly made and without bidding. The stock is said by some well-informed houses to be accumulated on all reactions. This is in accord with recent information regarding the stock whose position intrinsically is strong.

$ $ $

Colonel Taylor, of E. H. Rollins & Co., says: "Bond sales are very satisfactory. The inquiry runs to high-grade issues with fair returns. Low grade and cheap have had their day. Municipal bonds have the call over railroads, which is natural under the circumstances, but those who are interested we expect to see the demand swing into the rails."

$ $ $

The increase in the output of copper disappointed traders, who jumped to the conclusion that the agreement to curtail production has not been carried in good faith. It must be remembered that it takes about 90 days from ore to market, and the curtailment will not be evident until the statements are made for October.

$ $ $

The showing made at the Interstate Commerce Commission by railroad officers is believed that the railroads will get a material advance in rates. But in spite of that the best opinion in State Street is that the bear market and the fear is expressed that prices will drift lower.

$ $ $

Pacific Mail has begun its annual pilgrimage to higher prices, and, as usual, by the hope of a subsidy from the government. This stock can always be purchased about Labor Day and sold on St. Patrick's Day.

8-HOUR LAW CAUGHT G. O. P. NAPPING

The Republican party was caught napping last year on the eight-hour bill. There is much ignorance on the part of the country voters on the issues in this campaign and unless the Republicans clear the atmosphere the Democrats will take advantage of it. There has been too much reliance on the fidelity of voters to the party, and the error of this may be seen when it is too late.—District Attorney Swift of Fall River at Republican dinner at Nahant.

FOREIGN BANKS PLAN TO STOP COTTON FRAUDS

LONDON, Sept. 9.—A tentative plan to prevent fraudulent cotton bills of lading from being sent abroad from the United States has been agreed upon by the committee of English and continental bankers who have been in session here and who have adjourned until next Wednesday in order to communicate with bankers in America upon the feasibility of the plan, which is as yet in outline.

That the plan was learned to-day, although no official decision was given out by Sir Edward Holden, who heads the commission, it was also said to-day that a committee of American bankers may be invited here to participate in the conference when it resumes next Wednesday. If the joint conference is ultimately held it may result in new methods being outlined to prevent the possible influx of fraudulent bills in the future.

Foreign bankers are opposed to the American proposition that the bills bearing validation certificates because of the technicalities that might arise through the liability of agents. The investigation which is now under way is a direct result of the cotton scandal, which resulted in the failure of the big Southern cotton house of Knight, Yancey & Co., with $4,000,000 liabilities.

MOTHER SEES BOY CRUSHED BY TEAM

William H. Bushey, the four-year-old son of Mrs. George Bushey of No. 227 West Third street, South Boston, was run over by a heavy truck in front of his home and will probably die. His mother, whom he had left but a few moments before, witnessed the accident, helpless to give the little boy any warning of his danger. The child was rolling a hoop across the street and ran between the front and rear wheels of a wagon.

MACHINISTS VOTE TO CONTINUE FIGHT

At a special meeting of members of Machinists' Union No. 246, who are still out on strike, only one voted to return to work out of tow hundred. This result was announced to-day by Special Organizer J. H. Gilmour. A report has been in circulation that if the men had their own way they would return to work. In order to prove that the union was still in the fight, a secret ballot was taken, with the above vote.

1 KILLED, 2 HURT IN OREGON WRECK

PORTLAND, Ore., Sept. 9.—One man was killed and two others injured in a wreck of eastbound train No. 6 on the Oregon & Navigation railroad at Wyeth, twelve miles east if here, to-day. The engineer and fireman were said to be fatally wounded.

AUTOMOBILE RACE MEN GETTING CARS READY FOR BIG CUP CONTEST

By J. C. KERRIGON.

Following the success of the Marmon racing crew in the Indianapolis Speedway races, which ended for the season Monday afternoon, Ray Harroun, Joe Dawson, Dave Buck and Louis Heinemann, the yellow jacket pilots, will leave for New York within a few days to prepare for the Vanderbilt Cup race and other events.

They will have their racing camp at Krug's Corner, where they have reserved accommodations for fifteen men and five gasoline cars. Howard Marmon, designer of the car, and Homer George, manager of the team will accompany the crew East. They take their camp September 15th.

For the Vanderbilt, the Marmon people have built two new cars, more powerful and much faster than any they have ever raced in the past. These cars have four cylinder motors, with a 4½-inch bore and a 6½-inch stroke.

They represent the genius and experience of both Howard Marmon and Ray Harroun, and are, without question, the best they have been in the making, but neither was tried until the Speedway races when Harroun astonished the followers of the game with the speed of his car.

That which Dawson will drive has been getting a workout for some weeks under the hood of Howard Marmon's touring car.

In addition to entering these two big cars in the Vanderbilt, they have been named for the Grand Prize event which will follow on October 15th. For the Wheatley Hills, which will be run October 1st, the Marmon cars colors will be represented by the stock car which won last year, the model with an engine 4½ by 4½.

This car will be piloted by Either Buck, winner of the Kane County trophy at paper.

Elgin, Ill., or by Heinemann, who finished third in that race.

The one mile American track record for automobiles is still held by the Flat Cyclone, in spite of all claims of new figures purported to have been recently made at the Brighton Beach track.

This fact has been officially confirmed by R. M. Butler, chairman of the contest board of the American Automobile Association, who says: "The one mile American track record officially accepted and allowed by the contest board of the American Automobile Association, is 50 4-5 seconds, made by Ralph DePalma in a Flat, at the Hamline track, St. Paul, Minn., September 11th, 1909."

REDUCE ARMY MAN FOR SHOOT THREAT

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—Because First Lieutenant William L. Burchfield of the Marine Corps flourished a revolver and used threatening language to Policeman S. K. Kuhn and secret service officials he has been sentenced to suspension of pay for one year and loss of fifty numbers in rank. Acting Secretary Winthrop has indeed thrown a long row of thirty numbers and remitted the suspension of pay.

TWENTY LIVES LOST IN A HURRICANE

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, Sept. 9.—Advices received here from the interior indicate that a score of persons lost their lives and property damage running into the hundreds of thousands of dollars was done by the hurricane which swept the island and its waters Tuesday night and yesterday. It is feared that several small ships not included in the first reports of losses went down.

The AMERICAN goes into more homes than all the other evening papers of Boston combined. It is the Quality newspaper.

The Right to Fortify the Panama Canal Was Secured After a Long Fight by the Hearst Newspapers, and It Will Be Fortified

The fortification of the Panama Canal is likely to become an important international question. The English newspapers are discussing it. President Taft and Ex-President Roosevelt are both urging it.

General J. Warren Keifer, ex-Speaker of the House of Representatives, one of the surviving ranking officers of the Union Army, is credited in a Paris dispatch with the amazing assertion that the fortification of the canal would be a breach of the treaty between England and the United States.

General Keifer is either ignorant or misinformed. Nothing is better established by the facts than the rights of the United States in the canal.

THAT THE UNITED STATES HAS TO-DAY THE TREATY RIGHT TO FORTIFY THE PANAMA CANAL IS DUE IN LARGE PART TO THE VIGILANCE, THE PERSISTENCY AND THE AGGRESSIVE ADVOCACY OF THE HEARST NEWSPAPERS.

IF THE UNITED STATES HAD SURRENDERED TO ENGLAND, AS IT WAS ABOUT TO DO BY TREATY, THE RIGHT TO FORTIFY THE CANAL AT PANAMA, IT WOULD HAVE BEEN DUE IN LARGE PART TO THE CARELESSNESS OR NEGLECT OF THEODORE ROOSEVELT!

The Clayton-Bulwer Treaty of 1850 between England and the United States contemplated the construction of the canal under the joint auspices of the two governments, to be controlled by them jointly, its neutrality and security to be guaranteed by both.

From the date of its ratification it became the subject of frequent discussions and occasional irritation between the two governments. For fifty years it was a handicap rather than a help to the mighty enterprise, and nothing was done.

It became imperative that the Clayton-Bulwer Treaty should be superseded by a new agreement.

In February of 1900 John Hay, our Secretary of State, and Lord Pauncefote, acting for England, drew up a treaty. John Hay, asleep or indifferent, permitted this treaty to prohibit the fortification of the canal. England, of course, promptly accepted it. Under the strong protest of the Hearst newspapers, to which we shall refer again, the Senate amended this treaty by striking out the anti-fortification clause. Then England repudiated the treaty, and it failed.

This treaty in its original form, making surrender of the right to fortify the canal, was presented to the Senate by William McKinley, President.

In November, 1901, John Hay and Lord Pauncefote drew up another treaty. In this also Lord Pauncefote outgeneraled John Hay, and the provisions of the instrument did not authorize the fortifying of the canal. Upon this treaty also, as we shall explain, the Hearst newspapers levelled all their forces in a mighty American protest, and the treaty was in consequence amended to authorize fortification.

But the treaty in its original form, failed to establish the right of our country to fortify its canal, WAS PRESENTED TO THE SENATE AND ADVOCATED BY THEODORE ROOSEVELT, PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES!

When the first pitiful Hay-Pauncefote treaty was presented in 1900 the Hearst newspapers discovered that it surrendered the right to fortify the canal and turned us over to the mercy of England. Then our fight began.

Mr. Hearst from Egypt cabled his newspapers:

"The canal is to be built in the interests of commerce, and ALSO TO INCREASE THE EFFECTIVENESS OF THE AMERICAN NAVY, enabling its ships to pass rapidly from ocean to ocean, and in the absence of a greater navy to ENABLE OUR FLEET, AS FAR AS POSSIBLE, TO DEFEND BOTH OF OUR OCEAN COASTS.

"I HAD RATHER SEE EVERY SPADE AND SHOVEL WITHDRAWN FROM THE CANAL THAN TO SEE IT BUILT WITHOUT THE RIGHT TO FORTIFY IT IN THE INTERESTS OF OUR COUNTRY."

When the Senate came to consider the treaty the Hearst newspapers sent James Creelman to Washington as its commissioner and representative to fight it. It appeared at first to be an absolutely popular fight.

On the 10th of December Mr. Creelman telegraphed to Mr. Hearst: "FIGHT HOPELESS. TREATY AS GOOD AS PASSED."

Mr. Hearst telegraphed back: "EVEN IF PASSED, IT SHOULD BE ABROGATED. FIGHT IT!"

On December 12th, Mr. Hearst, in a personal published letter, urged President McKinley to his high and patriotic duty in protecting the right to fortify the canal. In the letter he said:

"You are at the parting of the ways. If your administration reverses the American policy, contracts American power, dims American glory and restricts American prosperity by this treaty that will chafe and hinder their progress and humiliate their pride, you will lose your popularity, as Grover Cleveland did. Secretary Cass in 1857 denounced the Clayton-Bulwer Treaty. President Buchanan denounced it in the same year. Secretary Seward opposed it in 1869. Mr. Hay makes the Clayton-Bulwer Treaty even worse than it was. England is the master now of every unprotected ocean route in the world. An unprotected Isthmian Canal would be fortified by England—fortified by her ships.

"And England would have ships enough, after matching our navy, to seal up a neutral canal by a naval cordon at either end. What you ought to do, Mr. President, is to relieve your friends in the Senate, withdraw the Hay-Pauncefote Treaty and substitute a simple agreement to consider the Clayton-Bulwer Treaty abrogated. Your place in history as a truly American President is at stake."

The American and the other Hearst newspapers, fighting a seemingly forlorn hope almost single handed against a shameful and un-American treaty which was on the very point of ratification, the American spirit, voiced by an "American Newspaper for the American People," finally triumphed, and on December 14, 1900, the Senate, with AN AMAZING REVERSAL OF OPINION, BY A VOTE OF 65 TO 17, passed the Davis amendment, which permitted the fortifying of the canal!

England, whose "unselfish friendship" was so loudly blazoned by John Hay and subsequently by Joseph Choate, rejected the treaty with this provision, and left us once more to the narrow restrictions of the Clayton-Bulwer agreement.

In the following year, 1901, a new treaty was prepared by John Hay and Lord Pauncefote. The English diplomat once more was on the point of outgeneralling the Anglophilist in our State Department. The provisions of the treaty were again in favor of England, and denied us the right to protect with arms the great waterway which this country was building at such vast expense.

Once more the Hearst newspapers took up the fight. Our commissioners and our representatives were again in Washington, and our

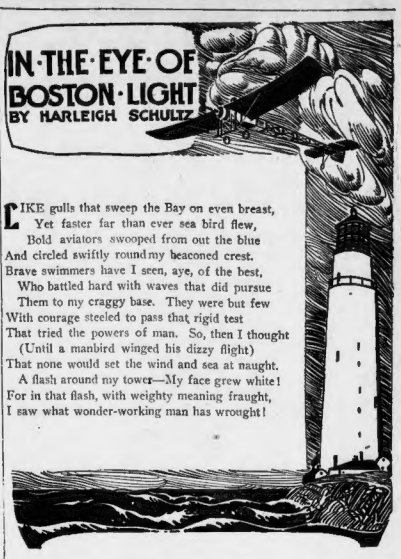
IN THE EYE OF BOSTON LIGHT

BY HARLEIGH SCHULTZ



LIKE gulls that sweep the Bay on even breast,
Yet faster far than ever sea bird flew,
Bold aviators swooped from out the blue
And circled swiftly round my beaconed crest.
Brave swimmers have I seen, aye, of the best,
Who battled hard with waves that did pursue
Them to my craggy base. They were but few
With courage steeled to pass that rigid test
That tried the powers of man. So, then I thought
(Until a manbird winged his dizzy flight)
That none would set the wind and sea at naught.
A flash around my tower—My face grew white!
For in that flash, with weighty meaning fraught,
I saw what wonder-working man has wrought!

The Right to Fortify the Panama Canal

men upon the watch towers sounded the alarm in the ears of the President and the Senate.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT PRESENTED THE INSTRUMENT WHICH SURRENDERED OUR RIGHTS AND INTERESTS AT PANAMA! He even advocated its passage with strenuous emphasis upon the Senate. But public opinion, thoroughly aroused by the clear and persistent appeal of these newspapers, made itself felt in the State Department and in the Senate.

And it was MOST DISTINCTLY AND UNEQUIVOCALLY IN RESPONSE TO THAT PUBLIC SENTIMENT WHICH THE AMERICAN'S CEASELESS ADVOCACY HAD AROUSED THAT OUR DIPLOMACY FINALLY FORCED UPON ENGLAND THE PRESENT TREATY, which ESTABLISHES THE RIGHT OF FORTIFICATION for which we have so urgently contended.

The new Hay-Pauncefote Treaty is between the United States and Great Britain alone, as the Hearst newspapers demanded. It provides in language diplomatic but expressly clear the right to fortify our country's great possession, as the Hearst newspapers demanded.

The United States has formally placed on record its own interpretation upon that treaty in advance, and England has accepted that interpretation by signing the treaty with the full knowledge of that interpretation.

In Rule I. of the treaty it was prescribed that the canal should be free and open "in time of war as in time of peace" to the vessels of all nations. This was the clause which the Hearst newspapers demanded to be changed to allow the closing of the canal in time of war to the enemies of our country. This dispute was settled by the omission of the words "in time of war as in time of peace."

Further, the memorandum of Secretary Hay specifically declared that "in view of the enormous cost of the canal and its maintenance by the United States it was deemed fair to OMIT the prohibition contained in the former treaty forbidding the fortification of the canal and its waters."

And to this official memorandum, formally transmitted in advance of the signature as the American interpretation, Lord Lansdowne, the British Foreign Secretary, on August 31, 1901, through Lord Pauncefote, and in behalf of the British Government, replied:

> "I understand that by the omission of all reference to the matter of defense," said he, "the United States Government desires to reserve the power of taking measures to protect the canal, at any rate when the United States may be at war, from destruction or damage at the hands of an enemy or enemies. . . . I am not prepared to deny that contingencies may arise when not only from a national point of view, but on behalf of the commercial interests of the whole world, it might be of supreme importance to the United States that they should be free to adopt measures for the defense of the canal at a moment when they were themselves engaged in hostilities."

In the long list of public battles fought and won by the Hearst newspapers in America, no one of them has recorded a more definite American sentiment, or illustrated in a more wholesome way the power of a patriotic conviction courageously maintained.
